City Water Supply Crisis Eases

Reservoir Level Up To 8 Feet

Wells Called Overtaxed

Mansfield's water supply picture appeared a little brighter last night as water in the Woodland reservoir passed the six-foot mark for the first time in more than 48 hours.

With the water level climbing slowly, the fire department pumper which has kept Woodland area homes supplied for the past two days was expected to end its work this morning.

The pumper has operated continuously since 10 p. m., Thursday to build up pressure in the Woodland standpipe to supply Woodland and South Boulevards homes. Many of them were without water five hours Thursday night when the reservoir level dropped to the lowest mark in recent years.

O. C. Kalbfleisch, water works superintendent, said he expected the level of water in the reservoir to reach eight feet by this morning. This would enable the automatic pumps which supply the 150,000 gallon Woodland water tower to begin operation and relieve the firemen who manned the pumper.

While the present water crisis is the result of an accident Wednesday night at one of the wells in the Clear Fork valley, it was pointed out yesterday that there will be no lasting relief until the Clear Fork reservoir is completed.

Kalbfleisch said the water table in the Clear Fork valley is dropping steadily as the city's demands for water increase.

OUTPUT DECLINES

The wells at the Maxwell pumping station now supply only about 5,800,000 gallons a day, while six months ago the wells were supplying 7,000,000 gallons daily.

Illustrating the extent to which the water table has been lowered, Kalbfleisch said when the pumps at the well were turned on a few years ago the water level dropped about 15 or 20 feet. Now the pumps pull the level down 48 feet.

He said the city couldn't continue drawing on the wells "much longer" at that rate.

He explained the shortage in the supply by pointing out that two years ago the city was able to "rest" two or three wells at different intervals, but now all wells are operated 24 hours a day seven days a week.

Consumption during the week is greater than the supply, but the difference usually is made up over the week end, Kalbfleisch said.

But during the last few months, the amount lost during the week has not been completely made up over the week end, and the level of water in the reservoir has been dropping.

Kalbfleisch said he hoped to have a pump installed at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company well by Monday morning and he expected the well to deliver an additional 500,000 gallons a day.

Aid Demand Forecast

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Congress may face an urgent demand for more stop-gap European aid unless the Marshall plan gets started by April 1, lawmakers heard Saturday.

A member in close touch with the State Department said Austria certainly will need more relief by then, and maybe one or two other countries as well.

The long-range, multi-billion dollar Marshall plan for European reconstruction is making good progress in an election year congress, but there is considerable doubt whether it can be cleared to President Truman in another month and a half.

But the $522,000,000 which the special session of Congress voted for the immediate needs of France, Italy and Austria is expected to be spent by April 1.

The long-range program made its first definite legislative progress yesterday.

Chinese Still Hold 4 Marines

SHANGHAI — (AP) — An attempted rendezvous with the Chinese communists failed to obtain release of four captive U. S. marines, but new efforts are being made by means of air-dropped leaflets, it was learned Saturday.

Five enlisted marines disappeared on a hunting trip north of Tsingtao on Christmas day. The communist radio confirmed only Saturday that they had fallen into communist hands and said one had been fatally wounded in the capture.

The dead marine was identified in the broadcast as "Blayton," evidently Pfc. Charles J. Brayton jr., of New York.

A U. S. embassy spokesman in Nanking declined comment on a report that the embassy had suppressed a press statement in which Adm. Charles M. Cooke jr., commanding the Western Pacific fleet, sought to tell of the capture and negotiations for the men's release.

The spokesman added, however, that naval authorities at Tsingtao were "already in contact with the communists and doing everything possible to arrange release."

CONFIRMS REPORT

What the nature of this contact was he did not say, but he confirmed that marine planes were dropping leaflets in communist territory north of Tsingtao, seeking to arrange a meeting.

Official marine and naval sources were silent, but one marine in Tsingtao said contact was hard to establish because communist leaders were constantly on the move.

It was known in Shanghai that at least one earlier effort involved sending a marine boat up the coast for a rendezvous, but the lack of developments indicated it failed.

Rumors were current in both Shanghai and Tsingtao that the communists had made some ransom demand, but these lacked details and could not be confirmed.

Union Rites Open Today

Dr. Wells To Talk At Nightly Meetings

One of the largest evangelistic programs ever attempted by Mansfield area churches will get under way at 7:30 p. m., today with a union service in Johnny Appleseed junior high school auditorium.

Twenty churches in Mansfield and Richland county will join in sponsoring the series of meetings which will continue until March 7. Services will be held nightly at 7:30 and at 2:30 p. m. Sundays, Feb. 22 and 29 and March 7.

Dr. R. J. Wells, nationally-known evangelist, and J. Stratton Shufelt, a song leader whose work is widely known, will be in charge of the services.

Music will be provided by a huge choir of members of the 20 participating churches. Shufelt will lead the singing. Tonight he will direct the singing of old-time hymns.

Special buses will leave Fourth and Main streets for the Johnny Appleseed school at 7 p. m., and return at 9:15 p. m.

Dozens of church workers will visit hundreds of homes in Mansfield this afternoon to urge attendance at the evangelistic meetings. Most of the visits will be made following a meeting at 2:30 p. m., at the Central Methodist church.

Dr. James E. Davey, pastor of the Grace Gospel church, is general chairman for the series. Dr. J. Frank Stewart is chairman of the financial committee and Rev. Albert L. Linder heads the publicity committee.

Reds Dub Nazi Pact A 'Must'

Declare Treaty Defensive Move

MOSCOW —(AP)— Russia said last night it was forced to sign a non-aggression treaty with Germany in 1939 in a fight against time.

Furthermore, the Soviet Union asserted that Britain and France shared a pre-war aim of starting a war between Russia and Germany, and that the Hitler-Stalin pact was an alternative move.

In the third chapter of their reply to U. S. documents, the Russians also said that the United States had supported in every way the "ruinous" policy of Britain and France.

(The U. S. State department published Jan. 21 a 362-page record of pre-war German documents which said that Hitler and Stalin conspired to carve up Poland, divide the Baltic states, dominate the Balkans and wreck British and French influence throughout Europe.)

Russia bluntly denied that its pact with Hitler was part of the plan of Soviet foreign policy.

FACED ALTERNATIVE

She said that after failing to reach an agreement with the western powers for a collective security front against Germany, the Soviet government faced an alternative:

Either to accept Hitler's proposal for a pact for self-defense reasons, or reject it and risk an immediate war with Germany.

At this time, Russia said, U. S. "billionaires" were investing capital in German industry and thus supplying Hitler aggression with arms.

"They might as well have been saying," the Moscow statement said. "Go on, Messieurs Europeans, wage the war to your hearts content, while we modest American billionaires accumulate wealth out of your war."

Russia accused Britain and France of playing a double game aimed at concluding an agreement with Hitler for purposes of directing German aggression against the Soviet union.

Hoppi-Copter Passes First Test Flight

SEATTLE —(AP) —The hoppi-copter—closest thing yet to equipping a man with wings—has passed its first man-carrying free flight outdoor test, the builders said Saturday.

Test pilots Maurice L. Ramme and Kermit D. Jones took the featherweight (175 pounds) craft aloft for several trials, Hoppi-Copters, Inc., reported. Development work on the plane has been under way for nearly three years.

The pilot sits in the open air, appearing to have the mechanism strapped to his back in the futuristic-cartoon motif. The 35-horse-power engine is at his back and the twin rotors whirl above his head. It has a tripod landing gear.

What's Holding 'Em Up?

Ohio Postmaster Mystery Revealed

Washington has a "great Ohio postmaster mystery", the Associated Press reveals today in a dispatch from the national capital. It concerns the reason for non-confirmation of 21 Ohio postmasters recommended to the senate for appointment by the president.

And Mansfield has a postmaster mystery of its own.

For two years Curtis L. Ford has served as acting postmaster, but neither he nor any other applicant has been notified of nomination for the permanent job. There has been no indication when the nomination will be made.

In July, 1945, the first Civil Service examination for the $5,200-a-year job was held. Ford was placed on the eligible list.

Last September a second examination was held because the Civil Service commission said they must have three eligibles before nominating one for the post.

Early in January this year, a Civil Service examiner appeared in Mansfield to interview applicants who, besides Ford, included John C. Schneider, George H. Blecker, Clifford O. Lister and George J. Mickan. No nomination has yet been announced.

In 21 other cities in Ohio, according to A. P., men selected by examination and interviews by the U. S. Civil Service commission and the U. S. Postoffice Department have progressed farther. Their names have been placed before the Senate for appointment. But there haven't been any appointments because Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio asked the committee on appointments to hold up the names.

The same Ohio group of 21 failed of confirmation last July 23, when, on Senator Taft's motion, the Senate last confirmed a group of postmasters en bloc.

TAFT BLOCKS MOVE

Twenty from the Buckeye state were confirmed at that time, but no action could be taken on the other 21 because Taft's move blocked the sending of their names up for Senate consideration. Senators have had, for years, the privilege of blocking postmaster nominations.

However, the 21 names cropped up again on a list of 36 Ohio postmaster nominees submitted by Mr. Truman last month.

Party affiliation is not available in Washington, but a good guess would be that most are Democrats.

However, Ohio Democrats in Washington do not seem at all perturbed about the situation.

One Democrat in the House said he figured the "Republican leadership" must have some reason.

Senator Taft, himself, was not available for comment Saturday. Jack Martin, his secretary, shrugged off any suggestion that political affiliations of the nominees might have some connection.

The reasons, he said, that Taft asked the names be held up, are

Plant President, 80, Feted On Birthday

Honor was paid last night on the 80th birthday of Frank R. McBerty of Mansfield, pioneer telephone inventor and president of the North Electric Manufacturing company of Galion.

Approximately 90 officers and veteran employes of the Galion firm attended a banquet in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel feting the internationally-known developer of the modern telephone system.

The dinner was on the informal side, with little speechmaking. Toastmaster was Carl J. Gugler, Galion attorney, who read a score of congratulatory telegrams from friends and admirers of McBerty in two continents.

McBerty himself made the shortest speech of all. He merely said: "I've never received so many congratulations in one day in all my life." Expressing his thanks, he sat down.

NATIVE OF WARREN

McBerty, born in 1868 in Warren, began his career in 1887. Since that time he has been identified with many important developments of the modern communications system

Among his most important contributions were the perfection of the dial automatic relay selection and the development of the first printing telegraph equipment.

But last night he received the accolade as a friend and fellow-worker from officers and veteran employes of the company which he heads. The banquet opened with a toast in champagne and closed with the singing of "Happy Birthday" as individual birthday cupcakes were served to guests.

Curb-Crime Drive Opens

A city-wide crime prevention week, sponsored by the Mansfield Exchange club, opens in the city's churches today. It will be extended to the schools later in the week.

Rev. John Melchert, of St. John's Evangelical church, said several members of the Mansfield Ministerial association would deliver crime prevention sermons today.

An FBI movie on crime prevention, especially among youths, will be shown at 10 a. m. Monday at Johnny Appleseed junior high school and at 1 p. m. Monday at John Simpson, with Robert Pumphrey, FBI agent stationed here, in charge. The same movie will be shown Wednesday at Madison high, under the direction of William Calhoun, local attorney and a former FBI agent.

Prevention of crime will be the subject of the Tuesday meeting of the Exchange club. Frank Berkey is president of the group with the Crime Prevention week committee composed of Berkey, Bill Calhoun, Robert Pumphrey and Rev. Melchert.

Taft Urges 'Greatest' Air Force

Compulsory Training Hit

DENVER — (AP) — The United States should create "the greatest air power in the history of the world" to promote world peace, Senator Taft of Ohio said last night.

"Not only will that give us the defense which we need, but it will deter any threat of attack from Russia or any other country far more than any projected plan of compulsory universal military training," the Ohioan said in a prepared text.

Taft's talk highlighted a day of activity in mile-high Colorado on behalf of his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.

He called universal military training "contrary to the whole concept of American liberty" and said it should be adopted only if "absolutely essential" to defense.

He added: "Up to this time the case for any real value in such training under conditions of modern war has not been made."

The senator contended that the Army, Navy and Air Force have been "slow" to develop authorized reserves and said the National Guard is "actually getting the men which it needs."

Extension of the Reserve Officers Training program through colleges and universities was urged.

HITS AID FIGURE

Earlier, at a morning press conference in Denver he discribed a $5,300,000,000 outlay for European aid for the year starting April 1 as "too large." He predicted that the figure, approved by the senate foreign relations committee, would be "somewhat less" when actually passed by Congress.

In his prepared speech, to nearly 1,000 Colorado Republicans at a Lincoln day dinner, Taft said, "There is no evidence that from Munich to Pearl Harbor there was any particular effort or concern about keeping the United States at peace," the Ohioan asserted.

"Probably we could not have remained at peace, but the story of our relations with Britain and Poland, the story of our relations with Japan and the events leading up to Pearl Harbor, lend strong support to the idea that war was not completely distasteful to those who guided our national destiny."

1,187 Killed In Palestine

JERUSALEM —(AP)— Sixteen persons were killed in the Palestine partition war Saturday, bringing the total number of deaths since Nov. 29 to 1,187.

A Jew was shot in Jerusalem, four Arabs were killed in a road mine explosion at Kastina and another shot in Jerusalem.

Three Arabs and two other persons were killed in a gunfight near Tulkarm.

A report from Tel Aviv said Arabs and Jews came to grips last night in the Holy Land's coastal plain. Four Arabs, three of them Egyptians, were reported killed when a Jewish armed party struck near the Arab village of Feja. Arabs were said to have attacked the Hatiqva and Givat Herzl quarters of Tel Aviv.

RAY T. MILLER

Miller Sees Dems Here Backing Him

Nomination-Seeker Visits Party Leaders

More than 100 Richland county Democrats crowded in and out of an eighth-floor assembly room in the Mansfield-Leland hotel yesterday afternoon to shake hands with Ray T. Miller, candidate for the party's nomination for governor.

"Richland county is the fifty-fifth county I've visited since Dec. 2, and I'm assured of almost all of the Democratic organization support of Richland county," Miller said.

He said he intended to make similar informal visits to all 88 counties before opening his speaking campaign April 1.

"I'll be back in Richland county in April," he added.

Richland Democratic leaders have said they do not intend formally to endorse either Miller or his principal opponent for the party's gubernatorial nomination, former Governor Frank J. Lausche, another former Cleveland mayor.

LAUDS PARTY POLICY

From the time the hotel room doors were opened in mid-afternoon until Miller ended his visit shortly before the dinner hour, friends and influential Democratic leaders stood elbow to elbow about the room.

Miller took time out to speak briefly. He lauded the "Democratic philosophy and the philosophy of American government" and urged his fellow Democrats to uphold the two-party system.

Steel Wage Fight Looms

CIO Strategists Starting Action

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Philip Murray and other top strategists of the CIO-United Steelworkers union begin conferences here Monday to draft new wage demands.

No tentative wage increase figure has been disclosed. Union spokesmen ridiculed any suggestion they would be influenced by the slump in the commodity markets and recent price decreases in some grocery lines. One source said it was too early to tell if the price drops would be permanent.

A steelworkers executive board meeting Monday will be followed on Wednesday by a session of the wage policy committee. The executive board consists of international officers and district presidents.

The wage policy group is made up of the executive board and representatives from union locals in all 36 districts. The wage policy committee must ratify the plans of the executive board but that approval has been a mere formality in recent years.

"Steel Labor," the union publication, has told the union's 850,000 members that: "The wage policy committee will have a mountain of evidence before it to prove that the industry can easily afford to boost wages."

Steel industry sources have maintained a close silence on the impending "third round" of wage demands since V-J day.

The nation's unionized steelworkers now earn an average of $1.54 an hour, according to union figures. The U. S. Steel Corp. said recently that average weekly earnings among its production employes stood at $61.34 as of October 1947.

Scattered Points In Ohio Hit

Cold May Halt Swollen Rivers

(By Associated Press)

Nature set about Saturday to curb the unruly elements that left 15 dead in West Virginia, Indiana, Mississippi and Ohio in a two-day onslaught of a storm and floods.

Turbulent flood waters still raged in eight states but the heavy rain clouds that produced them were gone. A wave of cold, dry air from Canadian-Alaskan areas banished the lowering clouds and brought sunshine to much of the nation.

Hundreds of persons driven from their homes by flood waters in Ohio last night looked for near-zero weather to arrest the rampaging streams.

One death was reported in Ohio, due to high waters which caused damage in widely scattered communities such as Columbus, Springfield, Dayton, Willoughby, Pomeroy and Bremen, in Fairfield county.

Rivers and creeks, which overflowed began receding Saturday as temperatures dropped.

COLD MAY HELP

The weather bureau forecast a cold wave for today and said temperatures would range from 5 to zero in the northern part of the state.

The Ohio river nosed toward 42 feet, 10 below flood stage, at Cincinnati. But at East Liverpool, in the northeastern corner, it was rising rapidly. It might reach flood stage of 32 feet at East Liverpool today and cover lowlands, observers said.

The weather bureau, however, said that continued cold weather would likely keep the Ohio from reaching flood level at Cincinnati.

The one fatality occurred near Willoughby. Gus Gamer, 60, drowned in the ice-choked Chagrin river.

Meanwhile, 173 other persons were rescued by coast guard crews and neighbors from 70 homes flooded by the Chagrin river in Willoughby township.

COLUMBUS AREA HIT

Overflowing streams imposed hardships on scores of persons near the state's capital.

An estimated 100 persons were made homeless or isolated in Gould Park, a suburb of Columbus, when the ice-clogged big Walnut creek spread out of its banks.

In Wonderland addition, another Columbus suburb, more than 50 houses were surrounded by water and 10 families had moved to higher ground.

Residents of the Springfield area also suffered as Mad river and Buck and Beaver creeks rose above flood stage. Several families in Snyderville and Durbin were evacuated.

Tributaries of the Ohio river overflowed over Route 7 near Chester, in eastern Ohio, and isolated that community.

At Dayton, 200 persons were being cared for in a Dayton Power & Light company recreation center after a flash flood drove them from their homes in Floral plat, near Wright field.

Judge Orders Baby's Return

CHICAGO—(AP)—A circuit court judge Saturday ordered a Chicago couple to surrender an eight-month-old baby to his Cleveland parents.

Judge Elmer J. Schnackenberg issued the order after Mrs. Katherine Salz, 22, of Cleveland told the court that the baby, Richard, was being held for $1,000 "ransom."

Mrs Salz said she and her husband Howard, 19, a maintenance man, left the child with Jack and Pauline Radford of Chicago six months ago, that Radford agreed to care for Richard while Salz and his wife sought living quarters in Cleveland.

The Radfords, answering a habeas corpus petition brought the baby to court Saturday. They admitted they had refused to give him to his parents but denied asking ransom.

Mrs. Radford, sobbing, declared: "she (Mrs. Salz) didn't care for the child for six months, and now she wants to take him away from us."

The judge asserted that a mother's claim to her child could not be denied. He gave the Radfords until Monday to prepare Richard for the trip to Cleveland.

The Salz couple has another son, Stephan, 22 months old.

125 Mansfield Girls Seek Prizes

Eight 'Little Mothers' Win Annual Doll Competition

The hearts of 125 "little mothers" palpitated anxiously yesterday while three judges took what seemed to the girls an unnecessarily long time to pick the winners in the annual doll contest at Mansfield public library.

Just so the waiting wouldn't get too tedious, Miss Eva Leonard, children's librarian, told them stories. But there were 125 anxious pairs of eyes and ears alert for names when finally Mrs. William Layton read off the list of eight prize winners and gave to each a package of book name plates for their personal libraries.

The eight "little mothers" who won prizes included Barbara Kay Goffondaffer, rear 72 East First street, baby doll class;

Peggy Lee, 522 Forest avenue, plain doll; Nancy Louise Ford, 377 Lincoln avenue, costume; Martha Yarman, 394 Lincoln avenue, largest; Ann Kautz, 434 Overlook road, tiniest; Polly Johnston, 50½ Park avenue west, bride; Pleasance Kaufman, 283 Park avenue west, unusual; and Alice Peele, 69 Bowman street, home made.

Barbara Kay's doll was a tiny one wrapped in swaddling clothes. Peggy Lee had entered a little boy doll costumed in red suspender pants, shirt and cap; Nancy's doll was costumed as Johnny Appleseed; Martha's as a four foot lady with flowing yellow frock and hat.

A diminutive doll wrapped in swaddling clothes belonged to Ann Kautz and Polly Johnston's doll was a lovely bride 29 inches long with white satin gown and veil. Pleasance's doll was "Honey Chile" with kinky black pigtails and dressed to the skies in a fur coat. Alice Peele's home made doll has a story. It was a handmade tiny bride, given to her while she was in the hospital by a family friend.

So eager were the youngsters for prizes that one little three-year-old took matters in her own hands and walked to the platform for a prize that belonged to someone else. For a moment or two there were several embarrassed adults and a little girl who threatened tears, but Miss Leonard smoothed over the error.

The display of dolls was one of the largest ever exhibited in the children's room of the library. Ranging in size from a tiniest prize-winner to a three-foot lady with yellow hat and frock, the display included 62 dolls in costume, eight or so in the "baby" class, a dozen home made and others in the remaining five classes to total 169 dolls.

Judges for yesterday's contest were Mrs. H. W. Gibbs, Mrs. Layton and Miss Mamie Duncan, Lucas teacher.

Tax Policy Revision By Dems Hinted

Official Reveals New Strategy

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A shift in the administration's line of defense against the tax cut drive of the Republicans was reported on good authority Saturday.

A high official, who cannot be named indicated the new strategy —keyed to signs of a potential change in the business tide— would follow this outline:

1. Champion a broad revision of the tax laws to benefit business as well as individuals. The idea would be to strengthen the country against the possibility of an economic storm.

2. Time the revision for later this year when the budget situation becomes more certain. This would be done provided that congress leaves the government in financial position to afford revision costs after allowing for "substantial" reduction of the national debt.

3. Stress that a quick slash like that proposed in the Republican $6,500,000,000 income tax-cut bill, would smash chances for "sound" changes in the tax system in the foreseeable future by eating up the money available.

The administration was represented as believing that the active, "counter-offensive" nature of this defense would be more effective than its past course.

PROPOSAL FAILS

"Realism" was said to require recognition that President Truman's proposal for $40 individual income tax cuts, with a 75 per cent excess profits tax on business to offset the revenue loss, had failed to take hold.

The administration was reported hopeful that the new idea of promising business-bracing aids, which are not covered by the pending Republican tax bill, would enlist new support for its plan.

The recent break in commodity market prices, a signal of softness in at least one part of the economy and a demonstration that prosperity is not sure-fire, plays a part in the new policy.

Cited as a trial run and initial public tip-off on the new strategy was a speech made by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder at Atlanta Friday night.

Snyder named among business taxes for which "revision appears to be particularly desirable in the interest of basic economic goals" the following:

(1) Excise (sales) taxes "which bear heavily on business costs;" and (2) double-taxation of dividends.

Singer Rescues 2 From Fumes

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A soprano soloist of the Cincinnati symphony orchestra rescued a pair of newly-weds Saturday after they had been overcome with gas.

The fire department reported Mrs. Isleta Gayle Garber dragged Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Hargrave from an apartment after finding them unconscious, victims of carbon monoxide gas from a clogged chimney. Mrs. Garber, who sings as Isleta Gayle, said she heard groans coming from the Hargrave's adjacent apartment and found the couple on the floor.

objections filed against the nominees by people living in their neighborhoods."

'LOSE NO MONEY'

Martin explained that none of the nominees are "losing any money" in the interim since practically all are serving as acting postmasters. Which means they have been appointed by the postmaster general to hold the job until such time as the President's appointees, selected under Civil Service rules, are confirmed by the Senate. Martin added that Taft probably would continue to ask that the nominations be withheld until he has investigated each case.

Five of the 21 Ohioans whose names are objected to by Taft are also unofficially held up at present by staff members of the Senate committee for other reasons. However, if and when committee objections are removed, Taft's stand still blocks further action.

These are the 21 nominees, together with the original dates of their nomination last year:

First-class offices: Harry B. Davis, Bowling Green, June 2; Harry F. Schiewetz, Dayton, July 2; William Hapner, Hillsboro, Jan. 10.

Second-class offices: Woodrow E. Cecil, Caldwell, June 2; Mary C. Debney, Corning, June 2; Clarence N. Emrick, Germantown, Jan. 22; Philip F. Dickerson, Scio, March 26; Elijah H. Jackson, Waverly, Feb. 26; Harry A. Hahn, Waynesburg, March 26; Glen M. Haas, Woodville, Jan. 10.

Bikini Atom Bomb Movies To Be Shown MondayNight

Official sound movies, in color, of the Bikini atom bomb tests will be presented by the Reserve Officers of Naval Services at 8 a. m. Monday in the American Legion clubrooms.

Giles Hamilton, president of Mansfield RONS, announced that the movies will be for all reserve officers of the Navy, Marine corps, Coast guard, Navy nurses, Air Force and any other branches of naval service.

Lt. Cmdr. J. A. Smith of Willard, district administrator of the Naval Reserve, will give a report on activities of the organization in this area.

He added that Lt. Cmdr. Smith also is expected to discuss the commissioning of the naval training center building, scheduled for late this spring.

Hamilton said last night that 375 invitations to the Monday night meeting have been sent to more than a dozen nearby communities.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

H. T. Siegenthaler, who is having a birthday today, doesn't like much fuss about his anniversaries. But as a Mansfield business man who opened a shoe store on Main street 38 years ago and is today one of the oldest in point of business years on that busy thoroughfare, he is likely to find congratulations showered on him by scores of his friends. The usual family gathering at the Siegenthaler home on Carpenter road will be foregone, however, because the Siegenthaler grandchildren are ill with the measles.

The News-Journal also extends congratulations to William Kuhn, head of the Richland Printing company. He's known as "Bill" to his friends and acquaintances.

Boy Bitten By Dog

Dr. Albert Selfman, 480 Sloane avenue, reported to police yesterday his 11-year-old son, David, was bitten by a large black dog while he was walking on Glessner avenue between Wood street and Carpenter road about 10 a. m. Saturday. Dr. Selfman treated the boy. A search by police failed to find the dog.

Rural Health Conditions Hit By Farm Head

Dr. Fred O. Tonney, city-county health commissioner, who has resigned his post effective March 1, returned to Mansfield yesterday after attending the National Conference of Rural Health and the Congress of Medical Education and Licensure in Chicago.

The more than 300 county agents, country doctors and rural health officials heard Dr. Gladys T. Edwards, director of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative union report on health in rural areas.

She pointed out that the positive value of fresh air and sunshine in rural communities is more than offset by the effects of poor housing, inadequate safeguards against rat borne diseases, exposure to farm animal diseases, and inadequate nutrition.

Dr. Tonney begins a two-week vacation Monday. He is scheduled to leave the city March 1 to take over his new post in Illinois.

Dr. A. C. Biddle, indigent clinic physician, has been appointed acting health commissioner by the city board of health, to take over when Dr. Tonney leaves.

U. S. Maps Atom Age Defense Unit

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A new civilian defense unit will get the job of planning protection against mass destruction in atomic age warfare.

Defense Secretary Forrestal said Saturday the initial study group would be small, made up entirely of civilians, and under the national defense organization.

Accompanying the announcement was the report of an army board which made a preliminary survey. The board concluded, among other things, that the civil defense organization used by the United States during the war would have been "inadequate to cope with a heavy attack."

U. S. Mum On 'Peace Feeler' Hint

Officials Doubt Russian Action

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The state department shut up like a clam Saturday on the question of whether a Russian diplomat in Berlin had called on an American official there recently and thrown out Soviet "peace feelers".

Informally and privately, officials who are in a position to know about any such development said that they did not believe there was anything to it.

The reports of Russian "peace feelers" or effort to "end the cold war" go back about ten days. Initially, they came from Berlin and coincided with speculation in Washington that Russia might be ready to seek a settlement of outstanding differences with the west.

This speculation arose because the Soviets had resumed lend lease settlement talks at the state department and because the Russians had made a new proposal for agreement on an Austian independence treaty.

At a news conference two weeks ago Secretary of State Marshall said, however, that he knew of no evidence that added up to a softening of Soviet policy.

The initial report from Berlin of a secret meeting between an American and a Russian has drawn skeptical reactions from officials here.

Earlier this week, Ambassador Robert D. Murphy, ranking American diplomat in Berlin, came here for conferences on the western German zone talks to begin in London next week.

Word had spread that Murphy was the American diplomat who received the reported Soviet "peace feelers" from an unidentified Russian. Reporters sought to question the ambassador about this but he made himself inacessible.

Earlier he was approached by Michael J. McDermott, state department press officer, who said afterward he could make no comment—could neither confirm nor deny that Murphy had seen a Russian emissary.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Gilbert K. Eggleston, of Mansfield, and one grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at the Wolford funeral home Monday at 10:30 a. m., with Rev. Samuel U. J. Peard officiating. Temporary interment will be in Mansfield until next summer, when the body will be moved to Boston for burial.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 2 p. m. today.

Volunteers To Contact 1,500 Persons

Chairmen Get Set For 'Go' Signal

Eighty-seven stores and 1,500 persons will be contacted in the retail and public employes division when volunteer workers are given the "go" signal March 1 for the annual Red Cross campaign.

Helping to raise the $58,000 quota set up for the Richland county chapter this year will be Sam Campbell who heads the retail division and Norman Wolfe, chairman of the government or public employes group.

"Everything is in readiness in the retail division to start out by 8 a. m. the opening day of the drive," Campbell said yesterday. "Robert Black is assisting in planning the work of this division and 12 other volunteers will get into the campaign promptly."

EXPERIENCED PLANNER

Campbell has had plenty of experience in campaign planning. He was chairman of the committee which this year named W. S. Ross as campaign chairman and assigned the various campaign posts. He's a board member and vice chairman of the disaster preparedness committee and a former chapter chairman. In addition he has been active in a number of former Red Cross and other civic campaigns.

In order to expedite his task of meeting 1,500 persons, Wolfe, county auditor, has divided his division into four sections.

"Those will include state, with A. L. Glattke as chairman; county, with Howard Wenning as chairman; city, headed by Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, and federal, which will be in charge of Curtis Ford," Wolfe explained.

Wolfe, like Campbell, has been an active participant in many civic projects and an active campaign worker in several.

SCALE MOUNTAIN

MENDOZA, Argentina —(AP)— Aided by shortwave radios and other scientific equipment, a five-member Latin American team this week scaled 23,081-foot Aconcagua, highest peak in the western hemisphere.

Damaged Streets Being Repaired

Mansfield streets, which took a terrific beating from the 1.85 inches of rain that fell Friday, were being repaired by street department crews yesterday and E W Davis, street superintendent, said last night he expected to be in "pretty good shape" by this morning.

South Foster street, between East First and Second streets, closed off yesterday, was open to traffic today, though Fifth avenue, North of Grace street, will remain closed indefinitely, Davis said.

The number of U.S. people living in cities over 100,000 population increased from less than 19 per cent in 1900 to nearly 30 per cent in 1930, but the proportion in such cities declined in the '30s.

GET WAGE BOOST

AKRON—(AP)—A 15-cent hourly wage increase, effective March 1, was granted Saturday to more than 1,000 members of the AFL-building and common laborers union in the Summit-Medina-Portage county area. New average wages will be $1.45 an hour, union spokesmen said.

Predicts Drops In Meat Supply

OMAHA—(AP)—A drop in cattle production will follow recent drops in livestock prices, the president of the Producers Livestock Marketing association said Saturday.

"Livestock men in this area are afraid of the uncertainty and confusion," C. Y. Thompson of West Point, Neb., said. "They are not going to fill their feedlots. This, of course, will curtail meat production."

Personal Tax Collection Set To Start

March 31 Deadline Fixed For Payment

Collection of personal property taxes starts Monday. Deadline for payment is March 31.

In 1947, collections from personal property taxes amounted to $632,155, including $473,417 in general personal property and $158,737 in classified personal property taxes.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, explained that the general classification included merchandise and equipment used in business; inventories, machinery and equipment used in industry; and livestock, grain and equipment belonging to farmers. Professional people must list their office equipment and supplies.

Wolfe said general personal property is taxed at 70 per cent of its true value. The tax rate is the same as that on real estate in the political subdivision where the property happens to be. At present, the Mansfield rate is $20 per thousand-dollar valuation.

FIVE PER CENT TAX

Classified personal property is taxed at five per cent of the income it produced during 1947. Such income includes interest on stocks and bonds except government bonds, bank stocks, and Ohio Insurance company stock, which are exempted.

Interest on notes, land contracts and paid-up insurance policies all are taxable at five per cent. Non-dividend paying securities are taxed at the rate of two mills on the value of the stock Jan. 1.

Bank deposits need not be listed in the return as they are taxed at the source. Nor are rents, salaries and pensions taxable under this law.

The general personal taxes are divided in the same way as real estate taxes, according to the tax rate of the subdivision in which the property is located, the money going to the schools, cities, townships and to the county.

The Mansfield and Shelby libraries share, in part, from classified tax collections. The balance of the taxes is returned to the political subdivision in which the taxpayer resides.

Wolfe said the various forms for listing personal property are available at his office and his staff will assist in filling them out. Checks for payment should be made payable to the county treasurer and mailed with returns to his office, Wolfe said.

1947 Residential Building Permits Show Slight Drop

The total number of residential units authorized for construction by the city in 1947 dropped slightly from the previous year's figure, the city's annual report to the bureau of labor statistics in Washington revealed yesterday.

The valuation of all new and alteration construction also dropped, from $2,520,207 to $2,428,449, thought in 1947 there were nine more new construction permits issued for all types of buildings, than in 1946.

A break down of the figures shows that 154 permits for residential building were taken out in 1947, eight of which were for multiple units. This contrasted with 163 permits issued in 1946 when 18 were for multiple units.

An over all total of 476 permits, for new and altered building, was issued in 1947, 23 less than the previous year. However, in 1946, 202 permits were for alterations while in 1947 only 168 were for alterations.

Quartet to Appear At MHS

By JANE ANN STONEBURNER

Another assembly is scheduled for the students of MHS Wednesday. The program, which will replace second period, will be presented by the Ambassador Male quartet. This group is composed of solo artists as well as masters of ensemble singing.

Here are a few of the selections they'll sing: Shubert's "Ave Maria," Kern's "Old Man River," Joumans "Without a Song," Doles' "Fireflies," Koshetz' "Cossack," and Bartholemew's "Battle of Jericho." The interpretation of Negro spirituals is a feature of their programs.

Three other favorites on the program are "Swiss Bells," "Bells of St. Mary," and "Sunday Morning in London."

Chairman of this year's Senior class party is Marilyn Beattie. May 28 has been tentatively set as the date for the party. A co-chairman and subcommittee chairman will be chosen tomorrow night.

A speech contest awarding $100 to the state winner is being opened to all junior and senior high school boys. Sponsored by the Sons of the American Revolution, the subject for the speech will pertain to some significant document or event preceding, during, or immediately following the American Revolutionary war.

Judging will be based on organization, logic, significance, appraisal, delivery, and clarity. Local prizes are $15, $10 and $5. State competition will be held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, April 23, during the S. A. R. state convention. Top awards will be $100, $50 and $25.

ELECTED PRESIDENT

Herbie Davis, one of last year's students, was recently elected president of the freshman class at John Howard university in Washington D. C. He has also been elected one of the students to the council at Cook hall, and editor of the freshman newspaper.

The Blue Tri clubs of MHS, the junior high schools, and Madison high will hold their annual church service at the Park Avenue Baptist church Feb. 22 at 7:30 p. m.

Each club will have a share in the service. MHS is represented by Carol Jean Ross, who will give a talk, and Pat Jackson.

Joan Freeland and Margaret Ann Lindley are co-chairmen of the program committee. Jean Hathaway, Betty LaYacamma, and Lola Marth are three others participating. A choir consisting of five girls from each club will be directed by Mrs. Thurza Hazeltine. Everyone is invited.

Featured in the "Who's Who" column of Friday's Hyphonerian were Betty Delaney, Dave Ganyard, Ernie Roberts, and Marilyn Hughes. Burt Lindsay and Shelly Swank were the subjects of "Stars Over Tygerland" write-ups. . . . Mary Ann Harry is the chairman of the 1948 girls' basketball tournament, which starts tomorrow morning at 7:15.

The Mumbles quartet will present its initial performance Friday night at the YMCA. Including Bill McGraw, Don McFarland, David Drumm and Bob Shambre, this quartet will appear in costume and dance in the style of four countries. Dick Butts and his orchestra will provide the music between intermissions.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Spirit of Unity Performs 'Miracle'

DOWN IN the Ohio village of Scio they have just had a civic celebration. And they had good reasons! In just two months they have built a new pottery plant to replace the one which was destroyed Dec. 11 by a $1,500,000 fire.

The contractor could hardly believe the job was done. He said it would ordinarily have taken him six months at pressure speed. The answer seems to lie in these words from the Associated Press dispatch describing "the miracle of Scio":

"While the embers were still hot in the fire-razed plant, employes and their neighbors had begun clearing debris. Typists took up hammers, clerks became welders, and the town clergyman pushed a wheelbarrow. They had one ambition—to restore production at the plant which had acquired fame for its cordial employer-employe relationship."

Incidentally, everybody toiled at construction labor for $1 an hour.

Here, surely, is the living and practical answer to many of today's labor-management woes. These employes were eager to pitch in at any task because their management had given them jobs in the depth of depression and divided profits with them to the total of $750,000 in 1946.

Vandalism That Reflects Ignorance

IS AMERICA caught in a wave of destruction of public property? Newton B. Drury, park service director, thinks so. Further, he says that vandals are ruining national parks. In many cities, officials are complaining of damage to municipal recreation areas and school executives are disturbed over increased defacement of school grounds and buildings.

The ravagers seem to follow a common pattern, though they operate in widely scattered geographic sections. The commonest form is name-writing, with real addresses, written on walls of washrooms or cut into scenic features such as tree trunks and historic markers. Next in such practices is scattering trash and emptying refuse containers. Sometimes trailside cases are broken into, the contents thrown about wantonly. Shrubs are uprooted, benches broken. In general the aim seems undirected.

Has the war infected some human beings with a mania for destruction? Has some code of discipline broken down? Whatever the underlying cause the results show that courageous thinking needs be applied to the problem.

One school principal remembered by an elderly reader used to assemble new students at the beginning of a term and give them a talk about the ideals and purposes of the school. Among other things he spoke of desks, buildings, grounds.

"These desks are yours. Your parents bought them with hard-earned taxes. Defacing them is like spoiling something in your home. We should all take pride in everything belonging to the school, and try to leave it better than we found it."

Vandalism in that school was always less than where principals did not take pains to explain and to inspire care of public property. There may be a hint there—of maintaining positive pride instead of applying negative punishment too late.

Is This Really 'Man's Last Chance'?

WHILE publishers and book reviewers are using up printing ink and space in heralding the $150,000 prize Metro-Goldwyn, Book-of-the- Month club novel by an Indiana professor, another smaller but more important volume goes all but unnoticed. It is written by a great scientist and internationalist, E. M. Freidwald, under the title "Man's Last Chance."

The author, with logic and eloquence, insists that the problem today is not communism, the rehabilitation or starving millions. It is how to attain, and soon, international control of atomic energy. Unless humanity can be successful in this goal, none of the other problems is of any significance, because there won't be enough left of civilization or the human species to matter.

The author believes the peoples of the earth have the ability and the means to meet the great issue of atom control. However, he warns, in a quotation from historian Arthur Toynbee, that every civilization has been faced with a life-or-death problem permitting either a great leap forward, or death. Till now, every civilization has been unable to accept the challenge to progress, and has perished.

Today's human beings may yet change history, save themselves and modern culture. The way is world government, according to Freidwald.

South America Has Vast Expanse

DESPITE growing interest in South America, many people in the United States find it difficult to grasp one basic and important fact about that continent, namely its great size. The twenty independent countries cover space larger than the United States and Western Europe combined. The southern continent is considerably more than twice the size of the United States, with Brazil alone larger than this country.

When one considers that within this vast territory some of the world's most valuable natural resources lie, it is easy to understand why, from the white man's first discovery of the continent, it has been a land of storied riches. In the early days of exploration the Spaniards and the Portuguese came to enrich themselves on the fabled wealth visualized then in gold and precious jewels. Modern concepts of economics and international trade bring outsiders to Latin America on a different basis.

The United States, for example, is both an importer from Latin American countries, and an exporter to them, holding first place in both export and import trade in the continent as a whole.

The tremendous area of South America must be visualized if North Americans are to grasp the almost limitless possibilities that lie ahead for economic and political co-operation.

The Portsmouth Times suggests: "It is much better to be known by your deeds than by your mortgages."

A curious thing about some people is how far they will travel just to say they've been there.

A Voice From the Country

Selfish Interests Delay Seaway Project

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

THE St. Lawrence Seaway and power project keeps turning up. It will continue to do so until it becomes a reality. It is one of those things which, like proper management of our great river watersheds, will become a fact because their great benefits are so obvious and because grim necessity will in the end bring about their accomplishment. In both cases it is a pity that we have not the wisdom to carry them through at once and reap more quickly the truly enormous benefits.

The St. Lawrence project continually has been a subject of controversy, but it is only recently that the sources of opposition really have been filtered out and become clearly identified for what they are.

The opposition, it is now clearly evident, comes from the seaports on the coast—New York, Boston, Baltimore, New Orleans and some of the smaller ports—who are unwilling to see the handling of so much of the productive wealth of the great Middle West slip away from them.

It comes also from certain public utility interests which are still obsessed with the desire for monopoly or, at least, control of all power.

And, in addition, it comes from a small group of honest people who, if sometimes confused, are at least honest and disinterested in their thinking—the group which has a genuine and often well-founded fear of government spending.

As the New York Times and other newspapers have pointed out, the issue is not one to be decided upon a basis of selfish interests but with the good of the whole country under consideration. Neither should the St. Lawrence project, the Missouri Valley project nor any similar one be considered merely as emergency operations or simply as more reckless expenditures of government money.

We have been trained by our government during the past 15 years largely to live from one emergency to another, and to treat everything accordingly.

This point of view and error extends even into the planning for European relief, which on a four-year basis never can be much more than an emergency program. It will take much more than four years and much more planning than has yet been contemplated to create a new, strong, sound and united Europe.

Such projects as the St. Lawrence waterway should be regarded not as government spending but as what they are—government investments beyond the capacity of any individual or corporation to bring into being. They help in the end to improve distribution and communication, provide cheap power and increase production.

All of this spells future economic security, employment and prosperity through agencies which over a period of two or three generations will return hundreds of dollars for every dollar invested.

* * *

Population Moves Westward.

BUT there are other elements involved in the St. Lawrence project, not the least among them the fact that the center of population, of industry and even of finance has steadily been moving westward for the past two generations and will continue to do so regardless of any protest from the cities of the Atlantic Coast.

With sound regulation of the stock market, sharp curtailment of international investments, and the steady and inevitable pressures toward economic union of this country and Canada, the center of the United States, its wealth and its productivity, moves toward a more realistic geographic and transportation basis.

Moreover, as air travel develops and with it military defense by air, the natural center of operations becomes Chicago and the surrounding area rather than New York or any other coastal area.

Free accessibility by water to the huge and rich area surrounding the Great Lakes becomes important for other vital reasons, not the least of them the vast steel industry upon which so much of our industrial economy is based.

The great Mesabi iron ore deposits are not inexhaustible, despite recent and very sudden propaganda campaigns by certain interests to make them appear so. Perhaps the soundest estimate is that the Mesabi deposits of high grade ore are good for, at most, another generation.

What then becomes of the billions of dollars' worth of ore-hungry steel plants at Chicago, Gary, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Youngstown and smaller cities as far east as Pittsburgh?

Transportation of iron ore by railroad becomes prohibitively expensive, and our already overburdened railroads have not the transport capacity to handle even a fraction of the needed ore by rail.

The greatest newly discovered ore deposits in the world lie in central Canada and in Labrador, both available wholly or partly by cheap water routes over the lakes or by the proposed St. Lawrence waterways.

* * *

Assurance For Future.

THE project will one day be a reality through economic necessity. It is a project based upon the long-range vision which is too little in evidence among our citizens and in the perpetual "emergency" planning of their government.

It is this kind of project which assures the future productivity and prosperity of American free enterprise and democracy more perhaps than any other element.

Yet, ironically, it is—as in the past—the self-proclaimed "free enterprise" group which is raising the noisiest opposition. The Bourbons, I think Voltaire said, never learn anything.

It is a pity that realization of such projects should be hampered and the great rewards delayed by selfish regional and utility interests.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Strange Story of Kaiser's Stock Battle

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Boss of the Bronx Ed Flynn, who had a great deal to do with picking Harry Truman for vice president at Chicago, has a queer complex about liberalism. He has repeatedly urged Truman to appoint a Negro as federal judge in New York in order to attract the Negro vote, yet he turns around and tries to undercut a government agency which protects the economic welfare of both Negroes and whites. This is what the charming Ed was up to when he visited at the White House this week.

PEARSON

His visit was aimed at persuading Truman to appoint Paul Rowen of Boston to the Securities and Exchange Commission, and simultaneously to make Ed Hanrahan of New York chairman.

On the surface, this sounds innocent enough. But below the surface, it happens that Hanrahan, already a member of the SEC, has come under the influence of Wall Street to such extent that it's a foregone conclusion that as chairman he would try to throw overboard the Holding Company Act, one of the greatest landmarks in FDR's battle against the big utilities.

It also happens that Rowen is pledged in advance to vote for Hanrahan for chairman.

Finally, it happens that Ed Flynn's law firm represents some of the best-paying firms along Wall Street. Nuff said.

Only other thing to do is watch and see whether Truman follows Flynn's advice. Inside word is that he's inclined to do so.

* * *

What Happened To Kaiser.

EVEN on the stock market it's sometimes a fact that mighty oaks from little acorns grow. Take, for instance, the mysterious attempted stock flotation for Kaiser-Frazer automobiles.

On Feb. 2, Henry Kaiser, the big West Coast shipbuilder who had the nerve to invade Detroit to build automobiles, sat down with his bankers to iron out final details of a $17,000,000 stock flotation.

Kaiser had successfully carried out his auto threat, was turning out 1,100 cars per day at the Willow Run plant, had made $5 per share during his first year of operation. He now wanted money to push production to 1,500 cars daily.

Participating in the conference were Otis and Company of Cleveland, The First California company of San Francisco, and Allen and Company of New York. Kaiser-Frazer stock, it was agreed, would be sold to the public on Feb. 4, at $13 a share but it was also agreed that to keep the price up the day before, Kaiser would buy his own stock at $13.50.

What Kaiser didn't know, however, was that Cyrus Eaton, head of Otis and Company, was going to tip off brokers to this fact. Supposedly this support agreement to keep the price at $13.50 on Feb. 3, the day before the stock flotation, was to be kept a strict secret.

But it wasn't. Furthermore, Eaton's telegram to brokers amounted to an invitation to them to dump Kaiser stock at $13.50 on Feb. 3 and buy it back for $13 on Feb. 4.

* * *

Kaiser Lays Off.

AS A RESULT there was a mad rush to sell Kaiser stock. Further result was that Kaiser had to shell out around $2,400,000 of his own money to buy his own stock. However, he kept his word. Grimly for one long day, he bought up his own stock at the rate of 500 per minute.

Otis and Company and the First California Co., however, did not keep their word. As the time approached for these two underwriters to take over the Kaiser-Frazer stock they had pledged to sell, a Philadelphia lawyer, James F. Masterson, mysteriously brought suit against Kaiser. In fact, he brought the suit exactly 40 minutes before Otis and Company was supposed to pay up.

And what most people didn't know was that lawyer Masterson had previously been close to Eaton and the railroad he finances, the Chesapeake and Ohio.

What people did know, however, was that the tumultous selling of Kaiser-Frazer stocks on the day brokers had been tipped off they could make a killing, was followed next day by the general stock-market nosedive.

Maybe the nosedive would have come later anyway. But the manner in which the bankers let down the one man who has dared buck the big auto companies certainly didn't help to retard it.

Note—Cyrus Eaton of Otis and Company has been extremely critical of Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman and his former investment banking connections.

Note 2—Other bankers, including the Bank of America and the First Boston Corporation, have indicated that they will now take up Kaiser's unfinished financing.

Capital Chaff.

AN ARAB mob recently set fire to two American automobiles and stormed into the offices of the Arabian-American Oil Co. Another mob confiscated a jeep from two American oilmen. The state department fears Arab forces may attack the strategic pipeline, now being built into Saudi Arabia . . . President Truman has told Lever Brothers soap people he plans to offer their American star, Charles Luckman, a new important government job . . . Spring Rains

—By ANNE CAMPBELL

Wash the world clear, oh rains of Spring,
Of every bitter happening.
Blow on the earth your April breath;
Revive the rose now locked in death.

Wash from the towns unhappiness,
Misunderstandings and distress.
Wash out the gray of hate and fears;
Rub in the blue of hopeful years.

Wash the world clean, and give us now
The leaf and blossom on the bough,
Spreading afar, so all may see,
The proof of immortality.

Listen World

Just Make the Gestures

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHEN men began to study the human mind there were several schools of thought. Take this matter of smiling for instance.

Do people smile because they feel happy?

Or do they make themselves happy because they smile?

Perhaps that question sounds silly. It isn't. It's based on sound reasoning which you yourself have used many a time.

How often you've forced yourself to smile when actually you felt anything but merry . . . times when you were desperately worried or bored or irritated. But you didn't show your real feelings. Good breeding demanded that you display a pleasant front. So despite your inner turmoil you forced your lips to curl and your eyes to shine and your voice to register sympathy.

You forced yourself to make the gestures and presently a miracle happened. The friendliness you had pretended actually came to pass. The artificial smile became a real one. You felt its warmth spreading through you . . . lifting your heart . . . driving away your worry and irritation.

And this wasn't just a coincidence.

IT IS ACTUALLY TRUE THAT YOU CAN MAKE YOURSELF FEEL BRAVE OR HAPPY OR LIGHTHEARTED, TENDER OR GENEROUS, JUST BY MAKING THE GESTURES WHICH SHOULD GO WITH THAT MOOD.

This is a proven fact. You do not need to wait until you're "in the mood." You can deliberately invoke any mood you wish by acting the part. It may take time and much practice but it can be done.

You need not be the helpless victim of unpleasant circumstances or an unhappy disposition. You can shape your own circumstances and mold your own disposition as you go along simply by putting on a cheerful act. And presently you will be what you seem—friendly and cheerful . . . popular and beloved—all because you dared to smile when you wanted to frown.

You can't always change your environment or alter the cussedness of your fellow humans but you can always make the gestures of a cheerful contented life. And by altering your gestures you change your whole viewpoint.

You can be what you seem. That sounds like one of those patty-cake platitudes but it isn't. It is one of the most potent and powerful truths in life.

Men have been lifted from the depths of despair by that truth. Wives have saved their marriages and rescued their children from serious trouble by using the hidden resources within themselves. Human beings of every sort have renovated their lives by "practicing the gestures" when their entire outlook seemed hopeless.

Smile! Refuse to let anything or anybody get you down. Act cheerful and hopeful and you'll be what you act. You may not be able to control the whole world but you certainly can produce a few optimistic gestures.

And take my word for it, Nature will do the rest.

Vanishing Rocking Chair.

The rate at which the rocking chair is vanishing from homes suggests the day when this once essential piece of furniture may disappear from the living room, to be found thenceforth only in museums. There, future generations will gaze upon it with the same wonder as that with which they now look upon the relics of antiquity.

The rocking chair was once considered indispensable. Generations were rocked in it as babies, and lulled to sleep despite the agitation of delicate little tummies.

Grandmothers spent their twilight years in rocking chairs, whiling away the days knitting. This was before they found it was more fun spinning over the highways in a sports convertible.

The modern efficiency apartment and the smaller type home have had something to do with tossing the rocking chair into the discard.—Ohio State Journal.

As Others See It

Oddity.

As Cerf Tells It

In the heyday of Boni and Liveright, Mr. Liveright walked into his shipping room just as a pile of one thousand copies of Henrik Van Loon's "The Story of Mankind" toppled over with a bang. "Does the foreman know what's going on around here?" asked Liveright coldly.

"I expect he does by this time," reckoned a new employe. "He's under them!"

Supplying Black Market

By KENNETH L. DIXON

SOMEWHERE IN GERMANY—They're forced to employ children and hearses nowadays, but the black market border smuggling business in Germany is doing quite well, thank you.

As a matter of fact, it's practically a recognized trade—even by the border guards whose business it is to block it.

Or at least, so I was told during the past several days by a motley collection of men and women who admittedly (after I agreed to handle their stories, anonymously) have been engaged in border smuggling for the black market for many months.

Their justification for their mode of making a living is contained in a single shrugging question: "How else would we survive?"

However much you may be prejudiced on the subject, it still remains a difficult question to answer. I didn't attempt it. I only attempt to tell you their story.

For a basic example, let's take German sugar and Belgian coffee. For eight years, coffee has officially ceased to exist in German households.

Nevertheless, a German with whom I talked told me he had not paid a single afternoon visit in months to the household of an acquaintance without being served a cup of coffee.

* * *

Crossing the Border.

MORE or less objectively, he had checked as to its source and found that it came from Belgium—bought with German sugar at the border on a gram-to-gram basis which was mutually profitable to the smugglers on both sides, and to the black market merchants who handled it.

If you accept no more than the word of the smugglers themselves—the main basis of this report—thousands of pounds of coffee have been smuggled across the border into Germany during the past six months, most of it in exchange for sugar . . . or, as it is termed, "Along the Sugar Way."

And the macabre phase of the affair is that their most successful smuggling conveyance has been a hearse.

For obviously understandable reasons, boarder guards hesitate to halt and search a hearse with what appears to be sad and weeping survivers aboard.

The tendency of both Belgian and German guards has been to wave such vehicles on with a commiserating gesture.

Of late, since the arrest of a gang of some eighty-odd persons involved in a hearse-smuggling enterprise, there has been a bit less of such sympathy in dealing with hearses—but the basic human element of compassion still permits many to pass by without inspection.

* * *

Juvenile Smugglers.

NO MATTER what your personal prejudices might be, the manner in which children are drafted into the border-smuggling racket is hard to stomach.

Varying in ages from six to sixteen and sometimes older, they sneak back and forth through the muddy trenches and foxholes of two wars, carrying paper bags filled with coffee, flour, margarine, cocoa, oatmeal and so forth.

Border guards, whose hearts admittedly soften at the sight of such youngsters—half-starved, cold and pinch-faced—say that the war-born waifs do their jobs with the ruthlessness and skill of hardened criminals.

They pose traps, such as sending half a dozen of their band noisily across the line to attract the guards' notice. But they, of course, are without contraband, while the others who sneak through during the diversion are loaded with smuggled goods.

One guard described how youngsters he had caught often begged him not to take away their contraband, saying "if we do not bring the coffee, we'll get nothing to eat."

In the face of such a plea, he still doesn't know what is right. Neither do I—but the black market border smuggling business seems to have the answers.

Dave Boone Says:

"THESE are sad times and out of joint. All seems dead, dead, dead, but the age is not yet dead: it liveth as surely as our Maker liveth. Be hopeful." This wasn't said by somebody this week or month or year as he looked at world conditions.

* * *

It's a quotation from Abraham Lincoln away back before he got to the White House and it's a good message to cling to today.

* * *

It's a good thought for this religious season of Lent, too, in this period for self-appraisal, honest, critical self-denial and reflection on the Ash Wednesday message "dust thou art and unto dust thou shalt return."

* * *

And above all it's a season for concentration on things of the spirit, a stirring of the embers of faith and a realization that in that path alone can we be hopeful.

Citizens' Forum

Gambling To Return, Many Citizens Think

Mansfielders last week were doubting that the newly imposed "lid" on city gambling activities would stay any longer than it has in the past despite Police Chief Jesse Schwab's statements to the contrary.

Reaction to this week's forum question, "Do you think this latest lid on gambling will stay this time?" indicated much interest and scepticism on the part of the local citizenry.

★

W. B. OBER, 499 Dias drive. "I think Chief Schwab will be able to keep the "lid" on if certain politicians and perhaps some of his superiors don't force him to take it off. He has to look out for his job like everyone else and he can keep it only by following orders. I think that the chief and his officers are sincere, honest men, but unfortunately they just don't have a free hand."

Ober

★

ANNE RAITCH, 150 Vennum avenue. "If we had more police officers on the force the chief might find it easier to keep gambling activities out of the city. He'll have to have the help of everyone from the city hall down. He and the police can't do it alone."

Mrs. Raitch

ROY W. SARGENT, 728½ North Main street. "Gambling has gone now, but I don't think it'll be gone for long. The same thing has happened many times before and the same 'this is the final warning' statements have been made before, too, but gambling always comes back. Only when power is taken from the hands of certain politicians who are deeply implicated in gambling will such a ban stay in force."

Sargent

★

WILLIAM LIGGETT, 24 Remy avenue. "I hope gambling is out for good this time. It'll take the help, assistance and cooperation of all Mansfield people. If the gambling lid stays on I'll be very surprised and say it's wonderful. I guess Schwab is a good enough chief, but there are too many men in town who can and do go over his head on such things."

Liggett

MRS. M. BROWARSKY, 544 Arlington avenue. "I doubt very much that Chief Schwab will be able to enforce the 'no gambling' for any extended period of time. Gambling will be done one way or another and gamblers will gamble regardless. The emphasis should be put on seeing that young people above all others don't gamble."

Mrs. Browarsky

★

L. W. TUCKER, 238 Sturges avenue." No, I don't think gambling is gone from Mansfield for good. I question the wiseness of the ban in the first place because in my opinion a man is going to gamble if he wants and it might as well be known about and controlled to some extent. More police officers might help to keep the "lid" on, but considering what and who they'd be bucking, I doubt it."

Jury Convicts Ohio Wife-Killer

LIMA —(AP)— Joseph Hicks, 45, was convicted of first degree murder Friday night in the fatal shooting of his 38-year-old wife Myrtle in a downtown Lima cafe last Sept. 19.

An Allen county common pleas jury of eight men and four women, voted a recommendation of mercy, which makes life imprisonment mandatory. The jury was out nearly five hours.

It's Churned In More Ways Than One

Butter—the Scapegoat For High Prices

Butter has taken somewhat of a beating. Not only in the churn—but in daily conversation. It has been serving as something of a scapegoat for all high prices.

By the time you read this the price of butter per pound probably will have slipped some four or five cents. But the golden stuff probably still will be pegged at a price which will cause housewives to single it out for special castigation.

Why? Why has the price of butter climbed? And why has it been singled out as the butt of high prices?

That's what this story is intended to show. The pictures show how butter is made. The News-Journal figured as long as housewives are paying the price, they might like to know how the stuff is made—as well as why it bears such a high price tag.

"Whenever anyone mentions prices, butter inevitably gets into the act with a housewife stamping her foot and crying: "A dollar a pound!' That's ridiculous."

Buttermakers claim, however, that the stuff hasn't risen much higher—if any higher—than many other items. "It's kept pace, proportionally, with the general upward trend," says one of Mansfield's major buttermakers.

He might be right. In November, 1941 butter cost 40 cents a pound. Now it's 85 to 90 cents. Many other items have jumped equally as high since the war.

Asked why he thought butter usually was set apart for barbs when the discussion got around to prices, the buttermaker agreed that it might be psychological.

"It causes quite a jolt in the family budget to lay out a dollar for a single pound. And the price is paid all at once," he said. Milk is paid for by the quart—perhaps 20 cents at a time. It doesn't seem like much—but the bill soon runs up to a dollar, too."

HERE'S ANSWER

Here's how buttermakers explain the high price.

Primarily, they say, it's due to the fact that there's a severe butter shortage, caused by many factors.

For one thing, a farmer gets more money if he sells milk for milk than if he sells the cream for butter. Consequently there's less butter on the market.

A farmer can get $5.35 if he sells 100 pounds of milk for milk. The same amount of milk destined for butter will bring him only $3.52. Only the farmer who can use skimmed milk (left after the cream's removed) can break about even by selling his milk products for butter.

"You can't blame the farmer for taking the best market price he can get," said one buttermaker, "but it still causes a shortage."

But butter producers point to the war as probably the prime cause of the butter shortage. During the war, they remind, the country's butter ration was cut when much of the milk produced was shunted into items easier to transport, such as dried milk and cheese.

This disrupted the whole buttermaking industry. Some buttermakers went out of business, others shifted over to producing dried milk or cheese. And the industry still hasn't returned to normal.

It still isn't getting its share of the cream needed for butter because farmers still are finding it profitable to sell their products for the war-boomed items rather than for butter. This is mainly due to the fact that the government is buying huge quantities of the transportable items for overseas shipment, one buttermaker said.

PRODUCTION HALVED

He estimated that as a result of this re-channeling of milk products, butter production in the U. S. now is only one-half of what it was before the war.

High grain prices also play an important part in the butter shortage. Buttermakers say some farmers are slaughtering their herds and selling the meat rather than attempting to keep herds going with high-priced feeds.

In order to make it worth a farmers while to produce milk, and thereby maintain at least a minimum butter supply, the price of milk products have been boosted steadily. But even this hasn't helped much.

One of Mansfield's major butter producers says that it has 1,000 less farmers to draw butter cream from than it had before the war. That same company, in keeping with the national picture, has seen its butter production drop from around 10,000 pounds a day to between 5,000 and 6,000 pounds.

One other factor which helps make butter even more scarce right now is the season. In winter, butter production drops to about half of what it is during the summer, when cows can be put out to pasture.

When will the price of butter come back to "normal"? When it once again becomes as profitable for the farmer to sell milk for butter as it is to sell it for most other milk products, buttermakers say.

ROY ROBINSON, 404 Henry Street, Page dairy employe, isn't pouring good butter cream down the drain. He's sending it on to pasteuring machines after it was weighed in by Gilbert Bistodeau, Mansfield, R. D. 3. Weighing and testing (right) show cream's butterfat content, determine how much farmer will be paid. Herb Funk, Mansfield, R. D. 2, does testing.

Restrict Mail To Canada

The importation of many types of merchandise into Canada is either entirely prohibited or allowed only if a permit has been granted by the Canadian minister of finance, Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford said yesterday.

Ford received the ruling from the Post Office department in Washington which was notified of the change by Canada's postal administration.

Before any package or parcel is accepted for mailing to Canada the sender will be required to endorse the wrapper "Importation Into Canada Authorized," or a similar endorsement. As an exception, occasional parcels addressed to individuals and not exceeding five dollars in value, containing unsolicited bonafide gifts will be admitted. Mailing of advertising matter or tobacco will not be permitted.

Tax Collections Top 1947 Figures

Sales tax collections in Richland county in January passed the $100,000-mark and were $19,000 ahead of the corresponding period last year, the state treasurer's report showed yesterday.

Revenue during the month totaled $108,371 as compared with $89,352 in January last year.

Old-Style Manikins Don't 'Fit'

Papier Mache Ladies Get 'New Look'

NEW YORK—(AP)—Milady can whittle a couple of inches from her waistline whenever fashion dictates, but a store window manikin's waist always stays the size it was made.

Producers of the papier mache ladies see this as a good omen for their industry.

They hope that store replacements plus the demand for new stores open may boost this year's sales to the peak level of 1946.

In that year retailers went all out in replacing war-worn display equipment. Estimates of what they spent for manikins alone range anywhere from $10,000,000 to $30,000,000.

Now display men find the new fashions do not fit the "old look" manikins as they should. Their waists won't nip in, their legs are too long and their shoulders too wide for some of the dresses.

This is because the new fashions require a change in posture which alters measurements, said Edgar Rosenthal of Greneker Corp., manikin producers. A woman can change her posture—a manikin can't.

WON'T FIT

"A dress is made to fit a woman—but a manikin is made to fit a dress," Rosenthal explained.

So manikin makers have designed figures to fit the new dresses. They don't expect stores to rush out and replace all of their display figures right away. Large stores have hundreds in use at one time, and that runs into money.

The figures cost retailers anywhere from slightly less than $100 each to more than three times that amount.

Take a manikin at a base price of around $200. A special base may cost from $3.50 to $10; two sets of arms in different poses add another $40 to the bill; extra hair pieces for elaborate coiffures are about $10 each. One firm charges $15 for a flexible waistline. There are rubber ear lobes for showing ear-rings, flexible hands for gloves and other optional extras.

The new look in manikins came along for retailers when they were beginning to cut operating costs, just as the new fashions came when women were watching the family budget.

So stores are taking to the new styles in manikins the same way the ladies took to the new costumes—piecemeal.

Prospect Scouts Hosts To Mothers

Members of Girl Scout Troop 28 of Prospect school held a Valentine party Thursday afternoon with their mothers as guests.

Refreshments, prepared by the Girl Scouts, were served. Two patrols of the troop bakes cakes, another made sandwiches and a fourth sent the invitations. Valentine cookies for the party were baked by Mrs. Catherine Clever, mother of one of the girls.

Troop members were assisted by their leaders, Mrs. Alton Geary and Mrs. Louis Wissinger, and Mrs. George Gump, committee member.

Compare THE COSTS..
..and you'll build with brick

Even if you were to compare only the ORIGINAL cost of brick construction with that of less permanent materials . . you'd find many points in favor of brick because:

YOU GET SO MUCH MORE HOME FOR YOUR MONEY!

But there's a lot more to consider than original cost when you plan to build a home.

COMPARE HEATING EXPENSE: — Your better-insulated brick home heats with much less fuel.

COMPARE INSURANCE COSTS: — Brick rates are far less than those for inflammable materials.

COMPARE MAINTENANCE AND REPAIR: — Your brick home needs no periodic painting and there's nothing to rot or wear out.

By every consideration, you'll find it pays to build with brick.

Don't Munch It, Snuff It!

A Benzedrine 'Jag' Could End In Death

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The U. S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is getting reports that some people—mostly convicts—are eating the insides of benzedrine inhalers to get a kick.

It warns that those who do it may die.

A benzedrine inhaler is a small tube-like affair, designed to be inserted in the nostrils so that sufferers from certain colds and hay fever can breathe the drug vapor.

But Dr. Robert T. Stormont, medical director of FDA, says certain individuals have been reported breaking open the containers and actually eating the contents.

Benzedrine in certain concentration has a stimulating effect on the central nervous system, but it should be taken internally only on a doctor's orders.

Stormont says FDA permits over-the-counter sale of inhalers without a doctor's prescription because "they are safe if used as directed on the label," but that a prescription is required to buy benzedrine in tablet form.

NOT SAFE

"There is nothing on the label of an inhaler," he says, "to suggest that it's safe to tear open the container and chew the contents. Yet this problem has arisen, and we're concerned about it.

"A person gets only a small dosage of the drug at one time when he inhales the vapor—and the label bears a precaution against too-frequent inhalation—but a person who chews the contents gets a possible dosage of 250 milligrams which is potentially dangerous and may even cause death." (Benzedrine tablets are usually five or 10 milligrams.)

The drug has a stimulating effect on the central nervous system and Stormont says it "will mask the symptoms of fatigue, making a person feel pepped up when he needs sleep—although this could not go on indefinitely."

"Some people apparently get a marked stimulation from it," he says. "There have been a number of reports of people ingesting the contents of benzedrine inhalers for such purposes. These reports mainly have concerned convicts, or individuals using it to get a 'jag'."

Stormont says reports have been received by FDA from "two different prisons."

He also says there have been newspaper reports of certain young people using contents of inhalers to "spike" drinks.

Jewish Chief Is Confident

JERUSALEM—(AP)—The Jewish militia is prepared to win its fight against the Arabs even without aid from United Nations forces, its commander said today.

He expressed hope the United Nations Security council approves creation of an international force to assist the Jews in establishing their independent state in partitioned Palestine.

More urgent, he indicated, is the lifting of the United States embargo on shipments of military equipment to the Jews.

Evangelist, 7, Leads Thousands to Altar

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Nearing her eighth birthday, child prodigy Renee Martz is every bit as talented and captivating as Shirley Temple was at that age.

But there isn't a chance in a million of Renee becoming a child movie star.

"You are not interested in movies—you don't even go to see them," solemnly explains Renee, "if you are saved."

There isn't much chance that Renee will change her ideas about the movies. Her father, an evangelist, doesn't like movies. Her mother, an evangelist, doesn't like movies. Her tutor, an evangelist, doesn't like movies.

Just to clinch the matter, Renee is an evangelist herself.

In little more than a year, Renee has preached to audiences totaling 200,000, in virtually every major city in the world. Of this number, says her father, Jack Martz, Renee has "led 6,000 souls up to the altar to confess their sins and accept Jesus Christ."

RECEIVED CUPS

She has received silver loving cups from interdenominational congregations in Belfast, Ireland, Perth, Australia, and Houston, Texas.

Renee is a slender, brown haired, brown eyed moppet who wears cowgirl boots during revival meetings and preaches the gospel with a fervor and natural sincerity that has made her an international reputation.

She likes chewing gum, dolls, animals (both live and stuffed), traveling—and preaching. She doesn't go to school. Her formal education is provided by her family and her tutor, Ruby May James.

Renee has an almost adult vocabulary and an exceptionally retentive memory. Her father says she memorized 200 nursery rhymes at the age of three.

Her father, a former Reading, Pa., hosiery mill worker, began preaching in 1935, two years after meeting his wife, Esther, who plays a saxophone at the Martz revivals.

FOLLOWS TRAIL

Renee was born April 21, 1940, at a Swedish covenant hospital in Chicago and has followed the sawdust trail all over the world with her father and mother ever since.

Renee regards her unusual life as very matter-of-course. She began preaching in 1946 in Oklahoma City and explains simply: "I got the call."

One afternoon, she isn't sure of the date, she saw "a red cross in the sky," Renee says, "and I heard a voice from somewhere say, 'you go and preach the gospel'." She told her father, and the following night Renee preached her first sermon.

Urge Sea-Level Waterway

Experts Say Canal Can't Be Defended

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Panama's turn-down of a U S request to keep military bases on her soil appears beside the point in view of a report by a high-rank group of military and atomic energy experts

These experts say that our present Panama canal could not be defended regardless of how many bases we had

This was stressed repeatedly in an exhaustive study which Congress recently received from the governor of the Panama canal, J C Mehaffey.

Congress ordered the investigation in 1945 It cost almost $5,000,000 and was conducted largely by officials of the army, navy, air forces and the atomic energy commission.

The report, which was unanimously agreed to in all essential particulars, concluded that only a sea-level canal would be secure against attack It said such a canal could be most economically built at the site of the present waterway

"The military defenses of the canal could not prevent a determined and resourceful enemy from striking the canal with one or more of the modern weapons loaded with atomic or conventional explosives," said the report . . .

DEFENSELESS

'The canal as it exists today cannot be considered as meeting the future needs of national defense . . .

"Even with a very strong military defense, no assurance would exist that an enemy could not penetrate to the canal with aircraft of great speed carrying conventional or atomic weapons or with aerial rockets and torpedoes '

The vulnerable features of the Panama or any other lock canal are the locks and the 'summit lake' (Gatun lake in the case of the Panama canal) which supplies water for navigation and lockage

One or two atomic bombs or a series of hits by conventional bombs could breach the lock chambers, or the retaining walls of Gatun, an artificial lake Even if the structures could be rebuilt, it would then take one or two years to refill the lake, depending on the rainfall

A successful sneak attack when our fleet was making the 8½-hour canal passage would thus be a double Pearl Harbor We would lose the use of the highly strategic canal and major components of our sea power would be grounded for perhaps two years

According to the report lingering radioactivity would prevent repair of the locks New ones would have to be constructed some distance away, and this would take at least four years.

SEA-LEVEL SAFEST

The experts believe, however, that no conceivable attack on a sea-level canal would close the channel for more than a few weeks. They said slopes could be constructed to prevent landslides

Atomic bombing of the channel would block it with radioactive debris, but the experts say that if personnel and equipment were available the obstruction could be removed within a few weeks.

Already, however, the military value of the canal has been reduced. The 110-foot wide locks are too narrow to pass the carriers Franklin D. Roosevelt, Midway and Coral Sea, which are 113 feet wide.

The canal report estimates that relatively cheap alternations, costing about $130,000,000 would enable the canal to pass all the traffic which could be expected within this century, except oversize vessels

If a new lock canal were constructed on approximately the present site, with locks large enough to carry the biggest ships we are likely to build before the year 2000 the report estimates the cost at $2,308,000,000

A sea-level canal, which the experts regard as the only really secure type, would cost $2 483,000 000 and take 10 years to build

Schools Invited To Attend Session

High schools in Richland and neighboring counties yesterday were invited to send representatives to a round-table discussion on the Taft-Hartley law at the Chesterville high school April 3

The invitation was extended by Wilbur G Spies superintendent of Chesterville schools The discussion meeting held in conjunction with the Ohio Speech league will start at 9 a m and last until 4 p m

Spiec said American democracy, American history, and speech classes particularly should be interested in the discussion meeting Dr William Utterbach of Ohio State university, will be the moderator

And She Tackles Man-Size Jobs!

Redecorating's Fun, Says Ex-Secretary

By JOHN MINE

Housewives who want their homes redecorated but lack the ready cash—or a "ready" husband—might take the advice of Mrs. Robert Tidd, 298 West Sixth street.

"Do it yourself," says Mrs. Tidd, "it's fun!"

To the "delecate" housewife who cries "I can't, it's too difficult," comely Mrs. Tidd has a poignant reply:

"Poppy-cock! When I started I thought nails were just something you had on the ends of your fingers. Now I'd rather spend an afternoon redecorating than shopping."

"You'd be surprised what you can do yourself," she explains.

Mrs. Tidd is a former Canton hospital secretary and had done secretarial work all of her life. It wasn't until a year ago, when the Tidds bought a house on West Sixth, that she came face to face with a tool box and paint bucket for the first time.

PAINTED, PAPERED FIRST

Mrs. Tidd's first major project was painting and repapering the entire interior of the house. That was shortly after the Tidds moved into their modest, five-room home.

Then—just recently—Mrs. Tidd decided that she wanted arches over the doorways—the ones connecting each of the downstairs rooms.

It was a project that would stump most men. But Mrs. Tidd didn't call in a contractor. She picked up a few tips from a friend as to "procedure", donned some slacks, rolled up her sleeves and tore into the problem.

Husband Bob and friends of the family were, to say the least, a bit apprehensive. Tidd, an Empire Steel company employe, was positive the project would end in a complete flop. He was certain that when the dust settled he'd have to put the house back together again.

HUBBY WOULDN'T TOUCH IT

But Mrs. Tidd refused to be discouraged. "In fact, when they said I couldn't do it I was more determined than ever to show them I could. Besides, Bob wouldn't touch the job—so I decided if I wanted those arches I'd have to put them in myself."

So down came the casings around the doors. Dust and plaster flew in all directions as Mrs. Tidd pounded away with hammer and chisel.

Friends came in during the afternoon for coffee—and to kibitz. Salesmen, the mailman, the delivery boy all took a keen interest in Operation Archway. "But I could see they were sure I wouldn't succeed," Mrs. Tidd commented.

About the only one who indicated any faith in Mrs. Tidd as an archway maker was "Nasty", the Tidd's dog.

But before she knew it she had the casings down and was ready for the metal "beading" and wire, used to form the arch and serve as a base for the plaster.

"And believe it or not, within two days I had the first arch finished and ready for the final coat of plaster. I'll have to admit that even I was surprised."

$3 AN ARCH

Cost? Mrs. Tidd says she can do an arch for a total of $3. She said the lowest estimate she received from a contractor was $17 an arch. "And he was a friend of the family."

The Tidd home now faces another major redecoration job. But it's still on Mrs. Tidd's mental drawing board.

She's planning to cut a new doorway through from the dining room to the living room or to build a fireplace in the living room.

Who's going to do the work? Why, Mrs. Tidd, of course. She says if she decides on the fireplace she'll probably have to have help in putting up the chimney. "But I'll do all the rest myself."

"The work fascinates me. I'd rather do it than make a $100," Mrs. Tidd declared. "Maybe it's because I like to get smeared with paint and plaster. I don't know. But to me it isn't work—it's fun."

MRS. ROBERT TIDD, Mansfield housewife, says she's discovered that doing her own home redecorating and remodeling is "really a lot of fun." And she tackles jobs that would stump many a man. At left she's shown attacking a doorway casing, preparatory to putting in an archway. In foreground, "Nasty," dog owned by Mr. and Mrs. Tidd, sits up to survey her handiwork. At right, Mrs. Tidd puts first coat of plaster on completed archway, one of three doorways she's remodeled. Before she attempted her own home projects Mrs. Tidd says she didn't know a paint brush from a putty knife. She had done secretarial work all her life. Now she's talking about building her own fireplace!

Should Spur Home Building

Higher Mortgage Cost Seen Beneficial

NEW YORK—(AP)— Whether you build a single house or a large apartment project, most mortgage experts say, it probably will cost you more to finance it this year.

Far from working hardship, this will prove to be a good thing for all concerned by assuring an even flow of construction money, in the opinion of George W. Warnecke, head of the New York mortgage banking firm bearing his name.

As far as the average person is concerned, Warnecke said in an interview, one of the most important benefits will be the effect of higher interest rates on the housing shortage.

"Investors naturally seek the highest yield the market affords," he explained. "With industries turning to private capital to finance expansion programs, many mortgage investors might be inclined to divert funds to this channel, if it should prove more lucrative.

"Such a development would hamper seriously the tremendous building program now under way.

But if financial institutions can realize a reasonable return from mortgage investments, they are ready and willing to supply almost unlimited funds for this purpose."

A more general benefit of higher mortgage rates is their anti-inflationary influence, Warnecke said. Pointing out that life insurance companies and savings banks are heavy investors in mortgages, he added:

COST INCREASES

"When earnings on these mortgages are low, the cost of protection to the individual insurance policyholder is increased. Similarly, when the yield to the savings banks is depressed, the depositor suffers."

Contributing to the trend toward higher interest rates generally are signs of gradual relaxation of the government's "cheap money" policy, which it maintained during the war to service its huge debt at as low a rate as possible. Lowered support levels for government bond prices, and advances in rediscount rates, are recent steps toward such relaxation.

Increased interest rates produce benefits in two ways, Warnecke pointed out:

They tend to correct the unbalance between people who rely on annuities or fixed income, and those in current wage scale brackets.

They give assurance to the investing public that there will be adequate return on funds loaned.

An upward move in mortgage rates is a reversal of wartime trends, when with private construction halted, lenders engaged in fierce competition to invest in existing buildings. This rush for such investments helped slash interest charges.

Now a swing in the other direction may be expected, Warnecke said, as the pent-up demand for dwelling units and office space is gradually satisfied, the construction program expands and demands for mortgage money increase.

Sticking Auto Sticking Still

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Edythe E. Marchisio's automobile got stuck in the mud. So she sought help from her brother. His car stuck, too.

Her sister was called. Her car stuck.

A neighbor came over with a truck. Yep, it stuck.

A crowd of men finally helped pull the vehicles from the mud—all but one. The first machine is still there—mired to the running boards.

New Buildings For Mansfield

Construction permits on file last week at the Mansfield building permits office were issued to:

William Auer, 184 Ausdale avenue, $10,000, five-room houses with attached garages at 19, 25 and 31 Shady lane. Contractor: self.

Main street; $5,000 remodeling job to store at 65 North Main. Contractor: Joe Miller, Akron.

Ray Walgast, 304 West Fourth street, $900 remodeling job at Health Spot Shoe shop, 84 North Walnut. Contractor: Ivan Bauer, Saxton road.

Baltimore Bookshop Finds Beer and Literature Mix

BALTIMORE —(AP)— A bookworm working back through the stacks of Bal[illegible]s Bookshop eventually will find himself on the threshold of a taproom in the rear.

Understandably, they are often quite surprised. The "Siegfried Stube" probably is the only place in the country where beer and books are served a la carte.

Many a bibliophile has browsed through the bookstalls without discovering the scenes of quiet conviviality in the rear, says proprietor Siegfried Weisberger.

His beer-book emporium was christened "Siegfried Stube" years ago by an enchanted browser. Stube, says Weisberger, is German for "a cozy corner, a quiet chamber for the intimate."

The Siegfried Stube is perhaps Baltimore's most original contribution to adult education. In the tradition of England's 18th century coffee houses, it is dedicated to latter-day Samuel Johnsons.

Weisberger, a 52-year-old native of Austria, believes the 65,000-odd tomes cluttering the walls of his shop encourage learned discourse. The beer loosens the tongue. Result: Bull sessions on a high plane.

Customers include undergraduates, testing new-found philosophies in the fire of conversation, bobby-soxers and sages.

Cornelia Otis Skinner, the actress, was in the other day; Baltimore luminaries like H. L. Mencken and Ogden Nash are wont to quaff a draught with Weisberger, and arrivals from Europe are likely to look up the Siegfried Stube first thing.

The unique bookshop was opened 25 years ago by S[illegible] late brother Hugo, in the cellar of an old Charles-street mansion hard by Mount Vernon Square.

In 1933, Friegfried, recalling the Europe that had been, converted a garage in the rear into a panelled taproom capable of seating 65 intellectuals around 17 oaken tables.

Finding that "nowhere else, to my knowledge, is there a place where beer and books are dispensed together," he laid by a store of American wines and beer and great wheels of Wisconsin and Pennsylvania cheese.

Beer and books, Weisberger says, "fitted together. Those who came to the tavern were attracted to the books in the front; those who came for books were attracted to the rear."

Although he has no competition, Weisberger wants some. He thinks similar places should be established "everywhere."

1,000 Towns, Cities Have Them

Civic Music Plans Popular Everywhere

(Editor's Note: Supporters of Mansfield's own Civic Music association will be interested in the following article which tells how and why the civic music idea has spread across the nation.)

NEW YORK—(AP)—This is the season when approximately 1,000 American towns vibrate with sopranos, ensembles, concert grands and Rachmaninoff concertos.

America, raised on "Turkey In the Straw" and compulsory piano lessons, has become the largest consumer of classical music in the world. Europe has less than a third as many concerts, according to a count by Columbia Concerts Corporation.

The transition in large part has been caused by two large commercial music companies who have made a success of attracting the plain public into the old "opery house."

Columbia Community concerts and the National Concert and Artists corporation have organized music like other community fund raising projects.

Instead of the old-fashioned method of persuading the town financier to back an evening performance, their formula is to gather the musical-minded in a big membership drive for a bargain-price series, single admissions refused.

In one eventful week the campaign is closed, the deal made, artists chosen and dates decided—and the ones who didn't join are out in the cold.

Subscribers get a minimum of three concerts and whatever the traffic will bear on artists. This year, for instance, for the $2,700 which the music lovers of Monroe, Mich., collected for community concerts, they will hear the Graudan's ensemble, the two-piano team of Whittemore and Lowe, baritone James Pease and coloratura Virginia MacWatters.

Carbondale, Ill., has four big musical evenings scheduled on its $4,700 budget; the Indianapolis symphony, Jennie Tourel, Sanroma and Walter Cassel.

The idea of dispensing with wealthy guarantors and organizing a musical body politic of the people originated with some old Chautauqua hands. Ward French, president of Community Concerts, made a significant experiment 25 years ago when he was a booker for the Red Path Chautauqua bureau.

Instead of bracing the town's most affluent citizen for a $700 guarantee, he sought $10 each from 70 farmers. It was the harvest season and he had to tackle his prospects in the fields, sometimes running alongside men at work with their machines, soliciting as he went.

It was an experiment that took the risk out of the traveling music business. Previously a blizzard or the wedding of a local heiress might leave an artist in the solitude of a strange auditorium—and the local guarantor on the hook. A farmer, or anyone else who planks down money in advance will be present in spite of distractions.

Another key to the success of Community concerts and its close rival, Civic concerts, is that no education is attempted.

"We've reversed the whole thing," French says. "In the old days the artist was the thing; mystifying the public was the object."

French's idea is that "name value" isn't necessary. "The show is the thing and entertainment the objective."

The concert organizations have taken the stiff backs and starched shirts out of the audience and burst the program confinement of the artists. French wants a good, hearty musical diet of familiar incredients theatrically staged that leaves the audience exhilarated, astonished and beating time with their hands.

He has no patience with people who talk about playing "up" or "down" to an audience. "That's meaningless," he says. "It depends on whether you are 'down' or 'up.' Just play to the audience."

The human voice is still the most popular musical instrument. French says one reason singers such as Lily Pons, Paul Robeson Dorothy Kirsten, Nan Merriman, Todd Duncan, Lawrence Tibbett and others are first choices of local committees is because singers were the first to grasp the idea that people will pay money to listen if they are going to enjoy themselves without a thought to education.

Pianists, it seems, caught on about 15 years ago. Violinists are last in popularity in this tally, because of old-fashioned repertoires.

The physical picture is changing, too. The old grand opera houses are coming down to make room for the last word in modern municipal auditoriums. Concert grand pianos have been bought for over 100 cities.

An impressive thought is that a top season for any artist is 50 engagements. It would take such a successful musician 20 years to make the full circuit of America's 1,000 organized audiences.

Berry Named As Father

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Wallace Berry, lovable bad man of the movies, is accused in a superior court suit of fathering the week-old son of a 32-year-old film bit player.

Berry was named defendant in a paternity action filed Friday by Mrs. Gloria Schumm, known professionally as Gloria Whitney.

"I have known Miss Whitney for 15 years," Berry told reporters. "She has just been a casual acquaintance. There is absolutely no truth to the charge. I don't know why she is doing this." Berry must appear in court March 2.

Savings and Loan Groups Make Gain

That people are still prosperous is indicated by the gain made in savings held by Ohio savings and loan associations for the month of January this year compared with the month of January in 1947.

According to Don L. Tobin, executive secretary of the Ohio Savings and Loan league. The increase in new savings in January this year over January, 1947, was approximately 8.19 per cent.

Ohio savings and loan associations also reported a 4.47 per cent gain in the volume of mortgage loans made in January this year as against January last year.

In the early days of poker-playing in the United States, three of a kind were ranked above a straight.

Pernickety Hens Foiled By New Feed

By BOB EDWARDS

Chicken feed, believe it or not, now comes in sizes tailored to fit the chicken.

The new feed, in granular or pellet form, comes in three sizes. There's a small size for baby chicks, a medium size for adolescent chicks, and the large economy size for king size chickens.

These vari-sized pellets, representing a considerable advance in poultry feeds, are the products of extensive research on a farm operated by Mansfield's Honegger-Hanley Mills, and two other Honegger mills, in Illinois.

The new feeds have stirred up quite a cackle in the barnyard for many reasons, For one thing, the usual troublesome dust from feed is eliminated. This will come as good news to farmers accustomed to losing large amounts of their mash feed supplies every time the wind blows.

But the feed has another, more important, advantage.

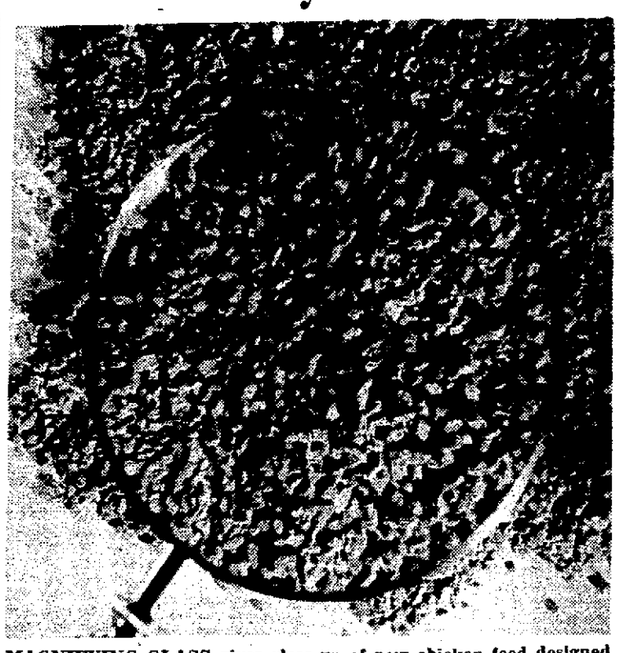
Getting a chicken to eat the parts of the feed formula which make it lay more eggs or put on thick layers of white meat is about as tough as getting Junior to eat his spinach and go easy on the ice cream. Like Junior, the chickens scratch around, take what they want and turn up their beaks at what is good for them.

ALL OR NOTHING

H. and H. feed researchers have gotten around pernickety hens by having the "spinach" part of the feed wrapped up in a neat little package right along with the "ice cream" part. The chicken has to eat it all or nothing and like it.

The new pellet feed which Honegger-Hanley is helping to pioneer, is one of a series of feed advancements made as result of work at the Honegger Illinois research farm.

For example, eight farmers near the Forrest, Ill. farm took advantage of poultry nutrition discoveries that were incorporated in Honegger feeds in 1941.



MAGNIFYING GLASS gives close-up of new chicken feed designed to make sure hens eat their "spinach" as well as their "dessert."

The happy hens belonging to these farmers produced an average of 231.12 eggs per hen, 78.12 grade A eggs more per hen than the national average.

The records of the eight farmers were supervised by the Pioneer Farm Management service, according to Honegger-Hanley.

MOTORIST KILLED

NEWARK—(AP)—Earl Gillogly, 65, was killed Friday night in a head-on automobile collision east of Jacksontown in Licking county.

Russia Offers To Buy Ships

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Diplomatic authorities reported that Russia has now offered to buy 87 ships she got from the U. S. by wartime lend-lease.

Russia's holding on to the ships has been a point of controversy for a long time.

Authorities said Moscow offered to buy the 87 in agreeing belatedly to return to the U. S. seven tankers and one cargo ship. The state department has begun negotiations.

No barrier to the deal was foreseen by officials—unless Congress objects—aside from agreement on terms. Members of the house merchant marine committee have protested Russia's attitude in the past. They heard testimony a year ago that the U. S. asked for return on the ships on March 18, 1946.

The ships are mostly of the Liberty type and have been carried on maritime commission books as surplus since Russia got them to deliver lend-lease materials.

Walter White

Was Civil Rights Message Just a Political Maneuver?

By WALTER WHITE

As was to be expected President Truman is not only being denounced by southern bourbons, but conservative Republicans and some of the supporters of Henry Wallace are charging him with "playing politics" because of his message to Congress on civil rights.

Others who are less active on the political front are puzzled even as they are gratified at the forthrightness of his stand on this issue. A distinguished liberal editor asked me, "How can he be so wrong on issues like Jim Landis and Marriner Eccles and so right on civil rights?"

WHITE

Without going into errors of omission and commission which have alienated some of President Truman's liberal support, I can add a personal footnote to the history of the President's position on lynching, disfranchisement, discrimination in employment and segregation.

Few men in public life have ever had so consistent a record as President Truman. As a member of the senate, long before he or anyone else ever dreamed that he would sit in the White House he voted consistently for anti-lynching legislation and other measures which were included in his memorable address to the congress on Feb. 2. He did this in a quiet, diffident way without fanfare of publicity or boasting.

His attitude on these issues has been in marked contrast with that of President Roosevelt. The late President was opposed to lynching and other evils which disgraced America at home and abroad. But he repeatedly told me that the time was not yet ripe for a head-on collision with the Southern senators and congressmen who, under the seniority rule of the senate and as a direct by-product of disfranchisement, chaired important senate and house committees.

NO BLUFF

Roosevelt issued his famous executive order 8802 establishing a Fair Employment Practice committee only when he was convinced that a threatened March on Washington was not a bluff. Whenever the professional southerners reared up on their hind legs and threatened secession from either the Democratic party or the Union, Roosevelt would hastily dispatch Jim Farley or some other emissary to smooth ruffled Dixie feathers.

Truman's attitude has been markedly different. When a small delegation representing labor, church and civic groups presented to him on September 19th, 1946, the facts regarding the wave of lynchings and other anti-minority practices which were then sweeping the country, Truman's face became pale with horror.

His voice trembled with deep emotion as he assured us that steps must be taken immediately to stop this wave of terrorism before it got out of hand.

It was at this conference that the decision was made by him to create the Committee on Civil Rights whose memorable report is a current best seller.

It is this observer's measured opinion that if the President wanted to play politics he would have followed the course of his predecessors of evading or postponing action on this most explosive of American issues.

He will undoubtedly gain stature among minorities which have suffered from persecution and among decent members of the majority who abhor the crimes which have disgraced America. But unfortunately there are a great many American citizens who through ignorance, prejudice or cupidity favor discrimination against one minority or another whether such approval is privately or publicly expressed.

Maniu Dead In Romania

ISTANBUL, Turkey —(AP)— A diplomatic source newly arrived from the Balkans said Saturday Juliu Maniu, Romanian political leader sentenced to life imprisonment for treason, died recently.

The informant said Maniu, 76, became ill in November, soon after he was sentenced, and died in a hospital. Maniu was in failing health when he was convicted by the Bucharest court Nov. 11.

Maniu was accused of acting on behalf of foreign powers, including the United States. The United States protested his trial and conviction, but the communist-dominated Romanian government rejected the protest.

THIS IS THE TIME

This is the time for man to strive and put forth his greatest efforts in spiritual directions. Material civilization has reached an advanced plane but now there is need of spiritual civilization. Material civilization alone will not satisfy; it cannot meet the conditions and requirements of the present age. Its benefits are limited to the world of matter.

There is no limitation to the spirit of man, for the spirit in itself is progressive, and if the divine civilization be established the spirit of man will advance. Every developed susceptibility will increase the effectiveness of man. Discoveries of the real will become more and more possible, and the influence of divine guidance will be increasingly recognized.

Valentine Appointments Used For Bancroft-Gowing Rite

Formal Closed Wedding Solemnized Saturday Evening at Park Avenue Baptist Church at 8:30.

A BEAUTIFULLY appointed Valentine day wedding united two prominent young Mansfielders last evening when Miss Patricia Ann Bancroft exchanged nuptial vows with Maurice Frank Gowing. The formal closed ceremony was solemnized at 8:30 o'clock before the altar of the Park Avenue Baptist church, Rev. Matthew G. Madden, pastor of the First Congregational church, officiated in the presence of many relatives and friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charles DeForrest Bancroft, Alta West road, and granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Ford. Mr. Gowing, who has resided at 381 Park avenue west, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rice Gowing, 550 Sheridan road, Evanston, Ill., former residents of this city.

A program of nuptial music was played by Mrs. Rhea Twitchell and Miss Marjorie Shelby was the vocal soloist.

In keeping with the Valentine theme the background for the service was in red and white with appropriate greenery. At the center back was a large arrangement of red and white gladioli and on either side were two beauty baskets of those flowers with white snapdragons and southern smilax in a draped style which contrasted with the dark wood background. Four seven branch candelabra were lighted in the choir loft and around the many tall tapers were large clusters of huckleberry, in a setting of palms and ferns. On every other pew a candelabra of two tapers was lighted and tied with white bows decorated with red hearts.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Tom Ford, Miss Bancroft was a lovely bride in a white satin gown, fashioned with a square neckline with collar of heirloom rose point lace. The same lace also formed the vestee down the front of the bodice. The skirt was caught in a drape at each side. Her sleeves were long coming to points over the wrists with cuffs of the rose point lace. The full skirt fell into a long graceful train. Completing her ensemble was a full length veil of French illusion, held in place by a crown of rose point. The veil was formerly worn by Mrs. Rose Neese, the former Kay Steif. The lace had formerly belonged to the late Mrs. Rena Caldwell and was worn 65 years ago on her wedding day.

She carried a white handmade lace handkerchief which had been carried by brides in her family for four generations. Her beautiful bridal bouquet was composed of white camellias, gardenias and carnations.

Mrs. J. R. Kessel (Julia Fishback) was matron of honor, attired in a soft red brocaded taffeta, made with basque effect waist and shirred onto a plain front panel with full peplum at the hips. The peplum was edged with white lace and with her gown she wore long white gloves and pearls. She carried a heart shaped bouquet of red and white carnation.

Bridesmaids were Miss Anne Ford of Sturgis, Ky., and Miss Helen Bancroft of Harrisburg, Pa., both cousins of the bride. They wore gowns made similar to the matron of honor's, only without the lace trim. Their gloves were short and they wore pearls and carried bouquets of red and white carnations, heart-shaped.

Miss Betty Brown, also a cousin of the bride, and Miss Suzanne Cummins served as junior bridesmaids, attired in full length white taffeta gowns, made with a band of shirred taffeta forming the rounding neckline and as a trim at the hip line. Their bouquets were also in red and white. The five attendants wore dainty heart-shaped half hats of soft red and white lace trim which truly looked like a real Valentine.

Mrs. Bancroft appeared at her daughter's wedding, wearing a crepe dinner dress made with a draped skirt and trimmed at the waist with silver and pink beads on the bodice. Her gloves were long and she wore an orchid. Mrs. Gowing wore a soft blue flowered print of floor length and long pink gloves. Her corsage was of gardenias.

Ushers who escorted the guests to their pews were Robert E. Gowing, brother of the bridegroom; Don A. Finefrock, Robeft Lynch and William Johnson of Wheeling, W. Va. Serving as best man was Charles Edwin Bancroft, brother of the bride.

Following the nuptials the bridal party received 175 guests at the Sky Club. Centering the serving table was a large tiered cake, topped by wedding bells and surrounded by heart-shaped arrangements of gardenias and greens. The fireplace was decorated with arrangements of glads in red and white, palms and two large baskets of glads.

When the couple left on their honeymoon trip through the south the bride wore a blue and brown checked suit with blue topcoat, brown accessories and wore a corsage of white camellias. After March 1 they will be at home at 86 Parkwood boulevard.

Mrs. Gowing was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and Miami university. She is a member of Delta Gamma sorority. Mr. Gowing was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and the University of Alabama where he was affiliated with Theta Xi fraternity. He is employed in the sales department of the Ohio Brass company.

Out-of-town guests in attendance were F. W. Bancroft and Tom Cullen of Harrisburg, Pa.; Mrs. C. C. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Martin of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fishback of Akron, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Fritchle of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Jonas of Evanston, Ill.. Miss Mary Margaret Kugelman of Portsmouth, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Marken of Bluffton, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Pipes, University Heights, Cleveland, Mrs. Minnie Robertson, Toledo, Mrs. Russell Sowash of Cleveland, and Mrs. R. L. Van Fossan of Richmond, Va.

Hagelbarger will officiate for the open church service at 2 p. m.

Marquis Sewing Circle Keeps Busy for Thirty-two Years

By DOROTHY MONROE

FOR THE PAST 32 years Mansfield's Marquis Sewing circle has met once each week at Memorial hall for a quilting session and during that time the 20 members have completed approximately 125 quilts.

The organization is a division of the Charles Dick auxiliary No. 28, United Spanish War Veterans. Its perpetual project is to do the quilting work for persons who have already pieced their quilts. Then the proceeds are used for the benefit of Spanish War veterans and their families and for civic projects and charities.

The circle was founded in 1916 and until the end of the first world war the members concentrated on work for the Red Cross. Later they began to accept work from individuals and more recently the news of the fine job they do has traveled across the country and they have received quilts from Cincinnati, Akron, Indianapolis and as far away as the state of New Mexico.

When the Mansfield Federation of Women's clubs was formed here the Marquis Sewing circle was one of the charter member clubs.

Mrs. F. S. Marquis was the first president of Charles Dick auxiliary when it was organized in Mansfield Nov. 3, 1913. In appreciation of her efforts in the "beginnings" of the auxiliary the circle was named for her.

Mrs. Andrew Heidinger is this year's president and the secretary-treasurer is Mrs. T. M. Bell.

Before each meeting of the auxiliary the circle quilts all afternoon and prepares dinner for the auxiliary members. These meetings are on the first and third Tuesdays of each month. On Thursday of each alternate week the circle members meet all day in their room in the Memorial building.

"Those are the days they get a lot accomplished," says Mrs. B. C. Summerville, auxiliary chaplain. "They're not interrupted in their work except at noon when they stop for their lunch."

Mrs. Summerville's duties as chaplain include discovering where the circle's income from the quilts the members finish can be used to the greatest advantage.

Appropriately enough the group is now working on an extra-large sized guilt of the "Martha Washington." It was pieced by Mrs. Charles Hall who donated it to the auxiliary for sale. The money will be added to the standing fund for the benefit of Spanish War veterans. Mrs. Hall also is the member who marks the quilting designs to be followed with the thousands of tiny stitches.

Aside from the worth-while work the ladies are doing the circle meetings afford them lots of fun and a chance to talk over any current topics in which they might be interested.

As the group met this week the afternoon's conversation turned to the New Look in clothes and eventually arrived at a discussion of the Old Look in pocketbooks of silver and tooled leather. A typical conversation:

"Remember when they used to attach the pocketbooks to the dress belts?"

"Yes, that was part of the New Look then."

"About the only place where the Old Look and the New Look are the same is in quilts."

You see, the ladies are truly interested in quilts and, no matter where it starts, it usually comes back to the subject of their years of effort. Mrs. Alice Oster pointed out, during the "style comparison," that she has a quilt which was brought from England over 100 years ago and the same pattern is still popular today.

Crib quilts, twin bed size quilts, very large quilts—swift needles pass through all styles of quilts each week in Memorial hall. And the Marquis Sewing circle continues to take a big part in the care for the veterans of the Spanish war as well as to make regular contributions to all sorts of civic charity funds.

Program At Hattman Home For Child Conservation Club

The roll call was answered by "the most interesting book I have read" when Mrs. Donald Hattman, 641 Arlington avenue, entertained the Child Conservation club and their guests, Thursday evening. Mrs. James Martin and Mrs. Donald A. May were associate hostesses.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Clifford Cochran read articles of interest in a letter from the state league president and a donation was voted to the March of Dimes. Mrs. Richard Wolford was appointed librarian, replacing Mrs. Robert Dunson, who is leaving to make her home in Florida. Mrs. Ward Holdridge expressed the club's appreciation for the time and effort Mrs. Dunson, a charter member and past president, has given to the organization.

The four guests were introduced, each giving the names and ages of her children. Mrs. Jay Long, Mrs. Charles Roe, Mrs. E. J. Culp and Mrs. William Enlow were the guests.

The meeting was then turned over to the program chairman who introduced Mrs. Dean Dickerson, the speaker of the evening. She reviewed the book "Over at Uncle Joe's" by Oriana Atkinson. Mrs. Dickerson, very interestingly interpreted the book a woman's view point of Russia. The high prices, filth and uncleanliness of markets and hotels, the lack of gaiety and the general absence of pride in their employment with men taking the easier work and the heavier left for women.

On March 11, Mrs. Fred Proctor, 453 West Third street, will entertain with Mrs. Donald A. May as associate. At that time members are to bring usable articles or foods wrapped to fashion hats which will be modeled and auctioned off during the evening.

Huge Floral Valentine Discloses Nuptial Date

Friends of Miss Margie Ann Schwein and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schwein, 455 Marion avenue, learned of her approaching marriage to David Bailey Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Williams, Ashland road, Saturday at two parties.

When Mrs. Schwein and her daughter, Mrs. H. J. Clark jr., entertained with a tea at former's home yesterday afternoon, 35 friends of the bride-to-be learned of the wedding date. A closed service will be solemnized on March 13 in the Schwein home at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. John Gensel of the St. Paul Lutheran church will officiate.

The date was disclosed when the group was served from a table centered with a floral arrangement which represented a dainty old fashioned Valentine. The solid arrangement of red carnations had at the top silhouettes of Margie and Dave. At the bottom, in white carnations cut out of the blanket, was the date in red carnations. On either side of the huge Valentine of flowers were Sterling candelabra. On the mantel were arrangements of red roses.

Presiding at the tea table were Miss Sally Russell and Miss Marjorie Boals. Out-of-town guests were present from Cleveland, Columbus and Ashland.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Schwein were hosts to 50 of their friends for a buffet dinner at 6:30. The guests learned of the marriage date by the same centerpiece used at the tea. The evening was spent socially.

Mrs. Clark, sister of the bride-elect, will serve as her only attendant.

In attendance from out-of-town at the dinner party were Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Glessner and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Henry of Columbus, all former Mansfielders.

Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, February 15.

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows excellent stimulus for the intellectual faculties, in which versatility and diversified interests could afford much pleasure as well as some prized accomplishments. Such might involve much stirring-about, literally or in the realm of the mind and aspirations. Affairs of the young should flourish and afford much pleasure or excitement. Joint interests are encouraged under new contracts or understandings. New deals should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of change, travel, new contacts and agreements, in which writings, publicity, advertising and communications should be very active.

A child born on this day has an exceptionally active and keen mind, with inclination to move about, travel, engage in writings and publicity.

* * *

For Monday, February 16

Monday's astrological forecast is for the danger of overdoing and carrying all affairs of the day to heights of failure and probable loss. Under an aggressive and strenuous impulse, the energies, activities, plans and projects may be carried to extremes and impulses and forces may be dominant rather than controlled in energies and tactics. Anger, strife, accidents and rebellion may cause grief, with separations, litigation, even fatality and ill health.

On the Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of self-undoing, through the turbulence and strenuousnes of their emotions, impulses and forces. Intellectual and physical urges may be carried to extremes, excesses and loss of opportunity, causing inharmony, quarrels, estrangements and personal dangers. Fire and accident may accent such aggressive and turbulent behavior. Attend rigidly to organized programs.

A child born on this day, although being fond of labor, planning and sound reflection, might also "fly off the handle," with little provocation to its great loss and detriment.

Helpful Hints on Furnishing a Home

By ROSEMARY MYERS

You know, most people struggle too much in decorating a room. They spend days searching for the right motif around which to build their room. So the Myers Furniture Co. decided to come to your rescue and pass on to you suggestions to make your home a more beautiful and comfortable place to live with the least effort. That is the reason we have welcomed your questions on your decorating problems.

Today, we would like to discuss the problem of one of our readers (We'll call her Mrs. Jones). In her letter to me she said "What can I do with our awful bedroom? It's plain as sand—and looks utterly hopeless! When we were married, we splurged on our living room, dining room and kitchen — and then ran out of cash! So the bedroom got leftovers from my girlhood room. Now the family budget is emerging from its slump, and we'd like to fix over the bedroom, but we don't know where to start."

After careful consideration, Mrs. Jones — here is what we recommend: Actually, Mrs. Jones, there is nothing terribly wrong with your room. It's just dull! The furniture, it's true, is out of date because its lines were never good. The little dinky rug seems to cut down the size of the room, and the wallpaper is not good or bad, which means it does nothing at all for the room. Good wallpaper, remember, can half-decorate a room. So let's start there. Blue you say, Mrs. Jones happens to be your best loved color, but you say you have read that north rooms demand warmth, so up went pink paper. Well — your reasoning was right, but your answer is wrong. You see, you can't be happy in a pink room, if you don't like pink. Why not paint one wall light blue, and on the other three, use blue and white striped paper, which supplies a clean, freshly starched look that's immensely smart, then get the warmth and brilliance a north room needs from the accessories, such as a yellow chaise lounge, glowing reds and rose in chintz draperies and bedspread ensemble, and a red rose chair for your husband's special benefit. You can thank the architect, Mrs. Jones for that recess. But lady, you missed the boat completely by not doing something extra special about it! An average bedroom is none too sizy, but an added recess like this can work a miracle. This is the place to put the twin beds you say you would like to have, and since you want to glamorize this room, let's use a Simmons big, 6-foot, 4-inch wide, blue gabardine headboard in antique white frame to which is attached by hinges on both sides, two Beautyrest Twin box springs and mattresses that slide apart for easy cleaning under beds, but yet can be made up as one large magnificent oversize bed for all the comfort in the world. You will find this jog in the wall has been changed into the loveliest feature in the whole room. To top it off add a pair of Mr. and Mrs. twin dressers with large mirror to reflect the cheery decorating theme of the room and we are sure it will have all the essentials of a perfect room — restfulness, convenience and full measure of personality and good taste.

Myers Furniture in Bellville have a good supply of Simmons Decorator headboard beds and can furnish you with the famous Simmons Beautyrest innerspring mattresses and box springs. They are open daily until 9 each evening for your shopping convenience. Write your decorating problems in to Box 278 Bellville and Myers will answer them free of charge.—Adv.

'Good Neighbor' Project

Ashland Co-ed to Teach In Argentina

By VIRGINIA LEED
N-J State Correspondent

ASHLAND—Without a doubt the most excited co-ed on the Ashland college campus just now is pretty 20-year-old Mrs. Nellie Eller Commisso, who leaves later this month for Argentina to become a teacher of conversational English at the University of Cordoba.

To make the adventure complete, her husband, Joe Commisso, college sophomore and captain of next year's football team, is planning to make the trip with her and stay until time for the opening of the fall semester here.

Mrs. Commisso goes to the Argentine university as an exchange student, replacing Miss Reta Guzman of Buenos Aires, South American student now attending Ashland college.

The exchange was arranged as a "good neighbor" project by Professor and Mrs. Egydio Romanenghi, both Ashland college graduates, the former now head of the English department at Cordoba. Mrs. Romanenghi is the former Eleanor Yoder, daughter of a pioneer Brethren church missionary to the Argentine.

TO SAIL FEB. 27

The Commissos will sail from New York Feb. 27 and will reach their destination March 16. Mrs. Commisso will begin her teaching and study at the university immediately upon arrival and her husband will assist in some way at the university according to arrangements by Prof. Romanenghi.

He plans to "batch" it upon his return in August while awaiting the return of his wife, who expects to be back in October.

Mrs. Commisso accepted the position mainly to increase her understanding of the Spanish language, which she plans to teach upon her return to Ashland while completing her education here. Already an assistant in the Spanish department here, she will return to the assistant's position upon her return

While in South America, the Commissos will make their home with Professor and Mrs. Romanenghi, with whom Miss Guzman resided before coming to Ashland.

Mrs. Commisso is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G J Eller of Milledgeville, Ill. She and the popular college athlete, Joe Commisso, were married last September.

Funds for Mrs. Commisso's transportation to and from Argentina are being provided through a subscription taken among college faculty members, Brethren church members and friends of the church and college.

Zion Church to Rise From Ashes of Fire

By VIRGINIA LEE
N-J State Correspondent

LUCAS—The same crusading spirit that in 1812 prompted their forefathers in the historic Copus community to build the German school and "house of worship" that became Mt. Zion Lutheran church will prompt the present generation to rebuild it.

This determination remains with the ruins of what was one of the most picturesque and up-to-date country church in this section of Ohio prior to its destruction by fire Tuesday morning. Built in 1866, the white frame structure was the third that had served the organization.

Church board members—many of them third and fourth generation descendants of the stalwart founders—met in emergency session Thursday night as an initial move toward rebuilding the only church home many of them had ever known.

The board set Feb. 21 as the date for a special congregational meeting at the school. It announced that an anonymous donor had made the first pledge for a rebuilding fund for reconstruction. The sum, not disclosed, was indicated as a substantial amount.

Board members are Wendell Blust, secretary; Howard Cook, treasurer, and David Culler, Emery Culler, John Snook, Harry Cook, Burlyn Maglott, Lee Culler and Keith Applegate.

FLAMES MARK GRAVES

Flames from the burning church illuminated headstones in the Mt. Zion cemetery across the road which mark burials since 1812. Many of the graves are those who made the church organization possible.

Among early names in the church cemetery history are Michael Shamibarger, Michael Culler, Jacob Koogle, Adam Winginger, Gerhart Sheets, John Ernsberger, Henry Smith, John Swigart, Philip and John Keefer, Mrs. Bonenberg and others. Most have progeny still residing in the community.

These were the people who laid out the church and cemetery plot with compass precision so that churchgoers would face east in time of worship and so that those buried would face the rising sun on Resurrection day. Even the recent building originally had separate doorways for men and women with the women entering on the east side and sitting on that side and the men using the west facilities.

Expansion and improvement have characterized the church since its beginning. The razed frame building which cost $3,000 in 1866 had its belfry, tower, spire and bell added in 1879, its stained glass windows, a slate roof and other improvements in 1893, its interior rearranged and partially refurnished in 1904, the old basement excavated and equipped before 1920.

The fire interrupted its most recent expansion program when about 80 per cent of its $12,000 improvements had been accomplished. The burning mass tumbled into the spacious basement that had constituted a major part of the renovation.

The huge bell fell from the tower to alight in the debris damaged but with this inscription intact:

At God's right hand at last be found."

Slate Clinic On Building

MT. GILEAD — Morrow county farmers who plan to build or remodel in the near future are invited to attend a "building clinic" meeting to be held Wednesday afternoon, Elwood Davis, county extension agent, announced yesterday.

The meeting, held under the direction of J. D. Blickle, extension specialist in agricultural engineering, will be held in two locations. At 1:30 p. m. the group will assemble at the Al Sautter farm, just east of Route 61 on the West Point road. There they will look over a barn which Sautter plans to remodel this spring.

At 2:30 p. m. the group will assemble in the courthouse annex where Blickle will discuss the changes that he recommends for the Sautter barn. At that time other farmers will be given the opportunity to ask questions concerning their own remodeling problems.

Many farmers build or remodel their farm buildings without taking time to plan adequately for efficiency, according to Davis. He pointed out that one mistake in building planning could add many hours to the time required for chores each week.

Centennial Plans Laid

MT. GILEAD—D. L. Musselman, Mt. Gilead superintendent of schools, was named to take charge of Mt. Gilead's part in the Morrow county centennial celebration at a meeting of clubs and organizations of the village.

The centennial which will observe Morrow county's founding on February 24, 1848, will be held on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, July 3, 4 and 5.

Other communities in the county are electing chairmen for their part in the celebration, according to H. E. Nelson, county chairman of the event. A county organization meeting will be held just as soon as all local organizations are completed, he said

Present plans call for a parade five miles in length to be held on July 5, an overhead air show and a ground display of aircraft and historical pageants presented by the various communities of the county.

State Editor's Notebook—

Week-End Roundup

By NORMAN DRESSER

Loss of the historic Mt. Zion Lutheran church has led farmers in the Lucas community to intensify their efforts to obtain more adequate fire protection in the rural area.

Lucas village councilmen and Monroe township trustees have set Tuesday night, Feb. 17, as the date for a special meeting with a representative of the state fire marshal's office. A large delegation from the Mt. Zion community is expected to attend.

Lucas volunteer firemen were powerless in the tragic destruction of the lovely Mt. Zion church Tuesday night, as they lacked equipment to fight a fire beyond the village's water mains. The church was located two miles east of Lucas.

Support Needed

Boys' village, an institution for homeless children at Smithville, near Wooster, is looking for several philantrophists—or, to put it more simply, it's in the market for donations.

The worthy enterprise, operated by Rev. Clarence E. Kerr, an energetic young minister who believes in giving boys a chance who haven't had a chance very often, wants farm and home equipment.

"Support gradually is growing," said Rev. Kerr, "but we need farm equipment such as a hay mowing machine. We'd also like to have a sewing machine to mend the boys' clothes and a mangle for the laundry."

The institution has a number of boys from the Mansfield area.

Help Wanted

Would you like to be a rural correspondent for The News-Journal? If you live in Bellville and feel qualified to become our Bellville correspondent, drop a note to the state editor.

Newswriting experience, while not essential, is preferred. But if you've ever done any type of correspondence or writing, we'd like to hear from you. A person who owns or has access to a typewriter would also be preferred.

The duties consist of mailing in a newsletter two or three times a week and keeping us informed by telephone of "spot news breaks." The pay? That's up to your ability and thoroughness. The job shouldn't require more than a few hours a week.

Meat Shortage?

Don't look for a sizeable or permanent drop in the price of meat. The commodities market break last week forced the price of pork and beef down considerably, but observers predict a meat shortage is almost unavoidable later this year.

The agronomists—that's a six-bit word for farm expert — are quoting a lot of figures and statistics to back their depressing forecasts. If you talk much with farmers, you'll probably agree. As a farmer said to us last week, even as prices were breaking, "It's just not worthwhile to raise pigs and cattle with grain as high as it is."

Farmers have been thinking along the same line for quite some time. Even if grain prices continue to tumble, a shortage of meat appears likely. Livestock can't be raised overnight.

It's a Dog's Life

Unlicensed dogs in Morrow county are leading a dog's life these days—that is, if they're still alive. Because of an unusually high number of sheep claims in the county last year and a decline in the number of dog tags purchased, County Dog Warden Floyd Sterritt is cracking down.

Three Morrow countians recently were fined $10 and costs before a justice of the peace on charges of owning or harboring unlicensed dogs. A number of other persons have been cited to appear before court on similar charges.

Since Jan. 20, the last day on which dog tags could be purchased without penalty, more than 10 dogs have been destroyed and a score of others sold at $1 each.

Facts for Filing

Did you know that Americans last year paid a $2,000,000,000 bill for the upkeep and well-being of insects? So says the department of agriculture, which ought to know. That's the price we pay for pests in this enlightened age.

Here's a little item to think about when your worries are a burden on your shoulders. A scientist who must be a handy man with figures has calculated that a cubic centimeter—that's about the size of the end of your thumb—from a star wandering out in the universe several million light-years from here would weigh about two million tons.

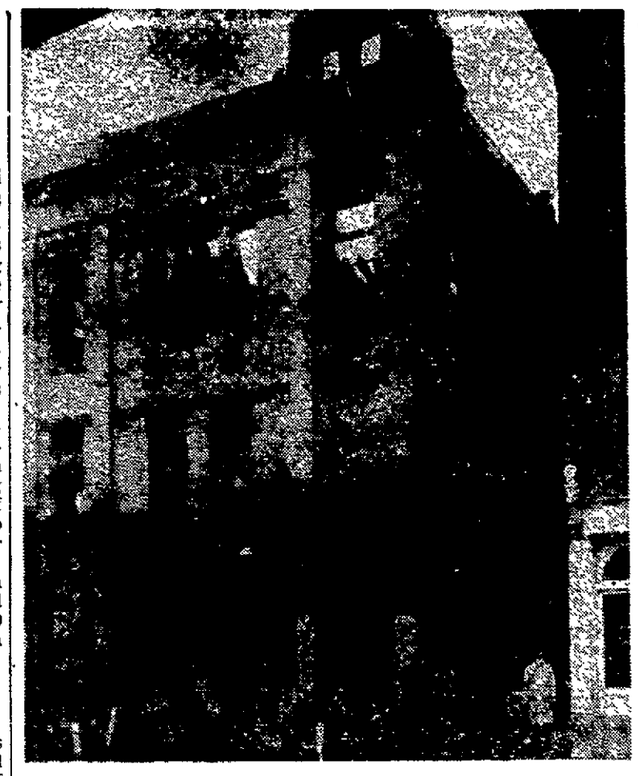
Bishop Gives Special Rites

GALION — The Rt. Rev. Lane Wickham Barton, bishop of the missionary district of eastern Oregon, who was minister-in-charge of the Grace Episcopal church of Galion from 1924-26, returns to Galion today for the apostolic rite of confirmation of the laying on of hands at a service at 7:30 p. m.

He is making his official visitation at the request of Rt. Rev. Beverly D. Tucker, D. D., bishop of the Diocese of Ohio, and in lieu of the Ohio bishop. Rev. Franklin J. Klohn is rector of Grace church here.

The public of Galion is invited to the service, and to welcome back Bishop Barton to his former parish. A reception will be held in the parish house following the historic confirmation ceremonies.



AFTERMATH OF SHELBY FIRE—Only the smoke-marked walls of the Knights of Pythias building in Shelby remain following the $80,000 fire which swept the structure early Friday. Morrow's Red Cross Quota For '48 Drive Set At $2,640

MT. GILEAD—Morrow county's 1948 Red Cross quota has been set at $2,640, it was announced last week by L. F. Courtright of Mt. Gilead, chairman of the county drive. Last year's quota was $3,000.

The annual drive for funds will begin on March 1, he said. During the past week township chairmen have been named and quotas established.

Quotas for townships and township chairmen follow:

The crossing has been the scene of numerous traffic accidents, several of which were fatal, during the last year.

Underpass Proposed

BUCYRUS — A movement to promote an underpass at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing on West Mansfield street on Route 30N here gained momentum last week as a group of Bucyrus promoters, city and county officials met with state engineers to determine how the project, estimated to cost $800,000, might be financed.

Among those present for the conference were Rep. Terry Brown, $75; Mt. Gilead village, $400; Edison, J. C. Ferris, $75; and Troy, Mrs. Heidebaugh, $75.

CIO Aims Wage Drive At Chrysler

Workers Vote For Pay Parley

DETROIT —(AP)— The CIO United Auto Workers' new wage drive will be aimed first at Chrysler Corp.

This decision was reached Saturday when UAM representatives of 70,000 Chrysler employes voted to ask the corporation early next week to start bargaining on money matters. Negotiations probably will begin about a week later.

Norman Matthews, the union's national Chrysler director, said talks on a new wage clause for the two - year UAW-Chrysler contract would begin "in about 10 days."

This would be a week or two before negotiations on an entirely new contract with General Motors Corp. are slated to start.

The 100 delegates to the UAW national Chrysler conference postponed for the week end a notice to the corporation of intention to reopen the contract on economic issues.

This was done, Matthews said, to give a committee time to work out details of demands to eliminate "wage inequities" among Chrysler's 14 plants in Michigan, Indiana and California.

Representatives of Chrysler rank-and-file workers decided earlier to boost the UAW executive board's announced demand by a nickel.

ASK 30-CENT RAISE

They voted to seek a straight 30-cent an hour pay raise, medical and hospital benefits worth an additional five cents hourly, a pension plan, improved vacation provisions and a guaranteed weekly wage.

The executive board had approved the same "fringe" demands but called for only a 25-cent flat increase.

A group of General Motors union leaders, similar to the Chrysler body, decided last month to divert 10 of the 25-cent cash demand, if necessary, to a pension fund.

Only the wage clause in the Chrysler contract can be renegotiated at this time, and only once before the agreement expires next year.

Union observers admit the difference between the Chrysler and GM demands probably will have little bearing on settlement figures. The industry's "Big Three," which also includes the Ford Motor company, almost invariably settle demands for a figure within one cent of each other.

Ford will not have to talk wages with the union until May 15 under its two-year agreement.

Union spokesmen also minimize the significance of which company is chosen as the first wage "target." Last year the Chrysler negotiations started ahead of those at General Motors, but GM settled first. It may work the same way this year.

END OF THE RUN—This giant locomotive, the Pennsylvania railroad's most powerful freight engine, majestically slows to a halt in the Crestline yards as it completes its run from the east. The cars in the train now will be split up into their various destinations to the west.—(Photos by Bill Graham)

Freight Cars Get 'Pushed Around' Here

Crestline Yards Are Key Pennsy Center

By NORMAN DRESSER, N-J State Editor

CRESTLINE—One of the key points in the vast Pennsylvania railroad system is the classification yards in Crestline.

Here giant locomotives pulling 100 cars of freight slowly grind to a stop after the long haul over the Appalachians to the east or across the level Indiana and Ohio plains to the west.

Crestline, which is just a whistle stop to passengers on the Pennsy's fast, luxury limited trains between Chicago and New York, is to the freight train conductor the most important point between Chicago and Pittsburgh.

With a few rare exceptions, every freight car between New York and Chicago is handled by railroadmen in the classification yards here.

Every freight train passing through Crestline is broken up and reclassified for the various destinations to the east and west. New freight trains are made up and dispatched from the yards here.

YARDS DIVIDED

"The yard here is divided into two units here," W. E. Price, assistant trainmaster and top man in the Crestline yards, explains. "Eastbound and westbound traffic are entirely separated."

"It's our job here to expedite the freight through as quickly as possible. We also must inspect every car and engine for possible damage or faults and finally—most important of all—we classify every train and make up new trains for the 20-odd classifications."

For trains moving westward, there are 22 classifications. This means that every freight car passing westbound through Crestline must be placed in one of the 22 classifications and placed in new trains made up here according to its destination.

Classifications include Fort Wayne, Ind., points this side of Fort Wayne and the various destinations in Chicago. A box car of hardware, for example, which is bound for Denver, Colo., via the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad would be classified for the CB&Q yards in Chicago.

Key point of a classification's yards activities is the yardmaster's office. The Crestline office, like all railroad offices, is a dusty, dingy frame building. Inside, it is a bedlam of ringing bells, buzzers, teletype machines and shouted orders.

INFORMATION CENTER

Yardmaster M. C. Flaherty and Chief Clerk T. C. DeGrieve are in constant communication with railroad yards in Pittsburgh, New York and other main points, while the teletype machines grind out orders and other essential information.

Last week's cold weather was an added burden to railroadmen, as cold waves mean smaller trains, more delays and, as Price said, "more things to worry about."

Typical of a day's operations was a 75-car freight train which pulled into the Crestline yards early one afternoon. The train, pulled by a "Q-2" locomotive, Pennsy's largest and most powerful engine, contained 75 cars of mixed freight.

The train ground to a halt at the bottom of the "hump," key to the classification yard, just a few minutes behind schedule. The hump is a small, man-made hill on which cars are pushed to the top of the incline and then let coast by gravity to tracks on the other side of the incline, where by a series of switches they are classified.

As the train crew went off duty, the conductor took his waybills, showing the content and destination of each car, to the yardmaster's office. Within a short time, a switching engine was breaking up the train on the hump, placing each car in its proper classification.

TRAIN BROKEN UP

The humping crew, a group of hardy men who work in any kind of weather, within a few hours had completed breaking up the train and the cars, in their proper classification, stood in the yards while the yardmaster made up new trains to move the freight westward.

"Usually it takes less than 10 hours from the time any given freight car arrives here until it is moving westward again," Price explained. "Of course, things have been delayed considerably during the last few weeks because of the intense cold."

"The cold not only slows up the movement of trains, but it also cuts tonnage," Price said. "For example, this train has only 75 cars, while in milder weather the locomotive is capable of pulling up to 125 cars."

A modern development which has speeded freight in mid-winter is the use of hot oil sprays to warm up freight car bearings and other parts of the undercarriage. This time of year each car is sprayed with a hot oil solution to provide speedier and safer service.

Each freight car also is inspected by railroadmen for possible defects or damage. If a defective car is found, it immediately is taken off the train and repaired before resuming its journey. Locomotives also undergo inspection and they are given periodic overhauling.

Generally speaking, eight hours from the time a freight train arrives in the yard from the east, the cars which made up the train are again moving eastward as a part of various other trains. With increasing competition, railroads today are striving to cut down the stopover in yards.

With hundreds of freight cars passing through the yard daily, the yardmaster's office is a center of seemingly endless confusion. But all the clattering instruments and ringing bells have a reason. It's all to "keep 'em rolling."

Favors Aid By Farmers

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — Ohio farmers would handle European recovery work under a unique plan proposed here Saturday by Albert Edward Payne, Republican gubernatorial candidate.

Payne's recovery program is a modification of the Marshall plan, financed by U. S. dollars but carried out exclusively by Buckeye farmers.

YARD HEADQUARTERS—Here in the yard office is received all the information necessary to expedite the freight through the yards. Chief Clerk T. C. DeGreive (left) and Yardmaster M. E. Flaherty keep in constant touch with other offices along the line.

'HUMP' OFFICE—Warming up for a cold job outside is the humping crew. These men have the responsibility of classifying the freight cars into the proper tracks at the bottom of the hump. Left to right, C. L. Tipton, C. T. Rish, Leo Hoffman, R. F. Bauer and C. L. Duffner, yard conductor.

OUTDOOR REPAIR SHOP—Come rain, snow or bitter cold, the repair crew must be on the job to make minor repairs to freight cars which are inspected in the yard. Shown removing a drawbar from boxar are three workmen and repair foreman, A. W. McKean.

30-Day Rent Compromise Wins Favor

Action Required In Fifteen Days

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A compromise 30-day extension of rent controls won important backers in Congress Saturday only 15 days before the present federal act dies.

Senator Wherry (R-Neb.), acting GOP Senate leader, told a reporter:

"I have an idea that controls will be extended for at least 30 days and the Senate may act on it before the week ends."

At the same time Wherry, avowed critic of all government controls, said recent price drops "have relieved the pressure behind all these controls and increased the need for quick tax reduction."

Another Republican opponent of controls, Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) agreed with Wherry about the rent extension.

"But I also believe that of the present 500 federal rental control areas at least one-third could be decontrolled without any serious damages," McCarthy said.

As vice-chairman of a joint housing investigation, McCarthy spent recent weeks visiting all major urban areas and cities of the nation. He declined to specify cities where controls should end or be retained.

BACKS LOCAL CONTROL

"We must keep rent controls in some areas for one, two and perhaps even three years," he told a reporter. "But the present federal setup must be revised to give local rent control boards full power. They must have the final say on controls, increases and re-controls."

Senator Morse (R-Ore.) said a recent closed-door session of all Republican senators heard predictions by GOP leaders that rents would "double in a short time" if controls ended immediately. Morse said the group decided an extension is necessary in the public interest.

Some decisions as to the form and length of continued controls are expected early in the week. Both Senate and House banking committees have closed meetings scheduled Monday and Tuesday on rents.

Recommendations by a Senate subgroup headed by Senator Cain (R-Wash.) for rent control extensions have caused a sharp dispute and many protests. Critics said it would be unfair to tenants.

BAND PARENTS MEET

The Senior High School Band Parents club held its monthly meeting at North Lake park Thursday, with a program following a dinner at 6:30. Musical numbers by several of the members featured the program.

Symbol of Worldwide Cooperation

Surgeons College Is UN of Science

CHICAGO —(AP)— A new symbol of successful worldwide cooperation stands on Chicago's gold coast.

It's a stately mansion recently dedicated as the headquarters of the international college of surgeons.

The building gives a solid substantiation to Louis Pasteur's dictum: "science belongs to no country." The organization has gone far in putting that principle to work around the globe.

The college has 5,000 members in 54 countries. Dr. Albert A. Berg of New York is the International president, and Dr. Francisco Grana of Lima, Peru, the president-elect. Other officers and trustees represent 19 different lands.

This United Nations of surgery was the brainchild of Dr. Max Thorek of Chicago. He conceived it as a "channel through which surgical knowledge could flow quickly, easily to all parts of the world."

Hungary-born Thorek, who speaks and writes nine languages, developed the idea in correspondence with like-minded men overseas. The college was founded in 1935 in Geneva, Switzerland. The motto, "for all humanity," has guided its subsequent growth.

EXCHANGE INFORMATION

Main artery for the exchange of information is the organization's bimonthly journal. It prints reports by surgeons on research and new techniques in English, and abstracts in French, Spanish, Italian and Russian.

Traffic with the U. S. S. R. is strictly one way. Thorek, the editor, remarks ruefully:

"We have been in Russia, but they don't write."

Conventions bring members together for discussions and demonstrations. National chapters meet every year. An international assembly is held biennially. The next one will be in May 1948 in Rome.

The annual seminar of the 2,500-member United States chapter here last fall afforded a graphic example of the good neighbor policy of men dealing with physical, rather than political, ills.

Surgeons from Buenos Aires, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Oslo, Prague, Bordeaux, Dublin, Istanbul and Bayamon, Puerto Rico, shared speaking rostrum and operating theater with their counterparts from New York, Chicago, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Rochester, Minn., and elsewhere.

Doctors from Seattle, Albuquerque, and Charleston, W. Va., talked shop with doctors from Alexandria, Egypt, and Halifax, London and Roehampton, England.

The emblem of this fellowship is a triangulated maroon and gold flag. It flies with the U. S. and Swiss flags at the reconverted mansion at 1516 Lake Shore drive which serves as the home of the International college and the U. S. chapter.

Ohio State Basketballers Surprise Illinois, 57 to 50

Senior High Cast as Tourney Favorite

Big Buck Rally Nets 35 Points

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio State upset Illinois last night, 57-50, with a second-half splurge of 35 points in a spotty Big Nine basketball game.

The bouncing Bucks turned the trick with a complete reversal of form in the final half. During that wild period, they hit 14 of 33 attempts at field goals. In the first half, the Bucks hit only eight of 35 attempts.

Dick Schnittker, ace Ohio State forward, changed pace right along with his mates. In the first half he was colder than the ice which covered the ground outside, sinking only one of 11 shots. But, he connected for six of 10 in the final half and with eight free throws paced the winners with 22 points.

POINTS COME HARD WAY

The Illini's ace, husky Dike Eddleman, counted only 18 points, but he was the edge to the Illinois axe, the player who covered both bankboards. Several of his points came the hard way—from long, arching shots far out.

Eddleman started the score mounting with one of his long-range shots soon after the opening tip, but the Bucks shot ahead, once sporting a 13-6 margin halfway through the first half. Eddleman settled the visitors down and they pulled ahead at the half, 23-22.

Michigan Five Wins Easy Tilt From Purdue

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (AP) — Leading every inch of the way, Michigan carved out a simple 69 to 56 victory over Purdue here last night for its fifth Big Nine basketball triumph in seven games.

Purdue, dropping to an even .500 mark with its fourth conference setback in eight games, faded in the first half as Michigan climbed into a 10-point lead at 23-13 but rallied to shave the Michigan edge to 29-23 by half-time.

The Wolverines sent Bob Harrison and Mack Suprunowicz in for the first two baskets of the second half, however, and put the game out of the Boilermakers reach by counting seven straight points midway of the second half, making it 47-33.

Suprunowicz, with five baskets in the first half, counted 17 for the night to lead all the scorers. Howard Williams, Purdue forward, registered 10 in the second half for a total of 13, identical with Harrison's total.

Lexington Battles Bellville In County Tournament Opener Wednesday Night

By GAYLE HAYES

Lexington and Bellville will clash in the opening game of the Richland county basketball tournament on the Mansfield high floor at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday night as a result of the drawings held at the courthouse yesterday.

Lexington, winner of the regular season and champion of the 1947 tournament, was the top seeded team, with Ontario, Butler, and Plymouth following in the seedings. The Minutemen, who won 12 of 14 league games this season, are expected to take their opening game and meet the winner of the Ontario-Shiloh game Friday night.

Ontario and Shiloh clash in the second game of the Wednesday program with Ontario's high-scoring team expected to win, since Shiloh went through the regular season without a victory.

Butler goes up against Lucas and Plymouth meets Union in the other first round games Thursday. The winners clash in the second game Friday.

REACHES FINAL TILT

The Butler team reached the finals of the county tournament last year, bowing to Lexington, 41-40, as Rollin Ford chalked up 21 points for the winners. Lexington won over Plymouth, 41 to 33, and Butler eliminated Ontario, 39 to 29, in the semi-finals.

Tickets for the tournament will go on sale at the various schools Monday, with each school allotted 100 tickets. Other tickets will be sold at the door, with no all-season tickets sold for the second straight year, and there will be no reserved seats.

Present plans call for the gym to be opened at 6 p. m. for all sessions. Carl Bachman and R. Don Clymer, both of Findlay, will be the officials, with Roscoe McGinity as the official scorer.

Tickets for students will be 50 cents with general admission for adults 75 cents for each session of two games. The championship game is scheduled for 9 p. m. Saturday, following the consolation game which is scheduled for 8 p. m.

A trophy will be awarded the winner and the runner-up with the team winning the consolation game receiving the championship basketball.

Favored Armed Third In Hialeah Handicap

MIAMI —(AP)— El Mono, a rank outsider at $99.80 for $2, won the $25,000 added McLennan handicap at Hialeah yesterday in a photo finish with Riskolater. The favored Armed ran third.

The four-year-old chestnut colt scored by a head over Rickolater. Armed, running seventh at one stage, closed some ground to get the show.

Madison Rated As 4th Best

Coaches of 12 high schools entered in the annual district tournament at the Sandusky junior high gymnasium yesterday nominated the Mansfield Senior high basketball club as the "most likely to succeed."

The Tyger basketeers polled 52 of a possible 60 votes in the balloting for seeded positions. Teams were seeded on a 5-4-3-2-1 point basis as each coach selected the five top teams by secret ballot.

Ashland's mighty Taylor Tots were second with 50 points, Bellevue picked up 31 and Mansfield Madison notched 20. Sandusky ended up in fifth place with 16 tallies.

LUCK OF DRAW

Luck of the draw also gave a boost to the Senior high chances. They drew a first round bye and ended up in the easier lower bracket. Coach Vern Hoffman's lads should have little trouble with their opening opponent—Port Clinton. The game is scheduled March 5 at 8:30.

The Tygers then will probably meet either Madison or Sandusky in the semi-finals, March 10. Winner of the Madison-Sandusky game March 4 at 7 p. m. will meet the Shelby-Willard victor in the lower bracket quarter-finals. Madison has beaten Shelby and Willard, twice each.

Ashland's defending champions have landed in the top bracket with such clubs as Fremont Ross, Bellevue, Norwalk, and the two Tiffin quintets. Ashland tangles with Tiffin Columbian in the first game March 3.

Remainder of the opening schedule follows: Fremont vs. Norwalk, March 3, 8:30 p. m.; Shelby vs. Willard, March 4, 8:30 and Bellevue vs. Tiffin Calvert, March 5, 7 p. m.

HAVE BEST RECORDS

Madison and Ashland have the top records with 15 wins and one loss apiece. However, Senior high has beaten Ashland, Fremont, Bellevue, Sandusky and Tiffin Columian in romping to 14 wins in 18 games. Ashland beat the Tygers in the finals last year, 41 to 39.

The tournament this year will be extended over seven nights. The semi-finals will be March 9 and 10 with the finals listed for March 12.

Each school will receive 475 tickets for the first and second round games with 700 tickets available at the door. In the semi-finals and finals, competing schools will be allowed 875 ducats. Adult admission is 75 cents and student, 40 cents.

Doors will open at 6 p. m. on two-game nights and 7:30 p. m. for the semi-finals and finals.

Present records of competing schools follows:

Lloyd Mangrum Fires A 63 To Take Golf Tourney Lead

HARLINGEN, Tex —(AP)—Debonair Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago ripped the 6,045-yard Harlingen municipal course with an eight-under-par 63 yesterday to shoot into the lead in the lower Rio Grande valley $10,000 Open at the three-quarters mark.

Displacing Jimmy Demaret, the singing man from Ojai, Calif., who led at the start of yesterday's round with 129 and skidded to a one-over-par 72, Mangrum brought his 54-hole total to 196. Demaret fell into second place at 201.

The finish of the leaders climaxed a day of bickering among the players over the rules situation and at one time two of the pros came to blows.

The two pros figuring in the brief flurry were N. G. Von Nida of Sydney, Australia, and Henry Ransom of Ravinia, Ill., former Texan. Ransom claimed Von Nida told him he should be charged an extra stroke on a hole for tapping the ball before putting. Ransom said he did not tap the ball.

Hot words passed between them then and later they renewed the argument near the scoreboard. They wrestled around on the ground until other pros separated them.

Al Smith of Winston-Salem, N. C., shot a 66 yesterday to move into third place with a total of 203. Next in line were Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., and Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C. who were tied at 204. Amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo had 207.

Six Schools Meet Today In Canton To Discuss Loop

Final plans for the Northern Ohio high school football conference will probably be drawn up this afternoon at a meeting in Canton.

Six schools, including Mansfield Senior high, will be represented at the meeting. Barberton, one of the seven schools suggested for the circuit, dropped out of the plans last week. Other five schools interested in the league are: Massillon, Alliance, Canton McKinley, Steubenville and Warren Harding.

If the league comes into being, other sports will be added to the calendar as soon as the football wheel begins operation.

H. W. Emswiler, Ohio high school athletic commissioner, will attend the meeting.

Augie Morningstar, athletic director, and Fred Staub, faculty manager of athletics, will represent Mansfield.

American Legion Days Planned

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK —(AP)— Plans for special American Legion days in every ball park in the nation were formulated yesterday. The occasion was the start of the 21st year of junior baseball co-sponsorship by the Legion and the major leagues.

Dan Sowers, chairman of the Legion's junior baseball committee, and Dale Miller, assistant to the director in charge of the baseball program, outlined their 1948 program.

Already promised the full cooperation of Commissioner A. B Chandler and assured of a $50,000 grant from the majors, the Legion has an ambitious program.

The Legion expects to hold special appreciation ceremonies at high school assemblies during the winter. School people who have helped the program in its first 20 years will be honored.

When the season starts, former American Legion junior players will be invited to attend "Old Timers day." During June and July, "Legion day" will be celebrated at professional parks. The games will be preceded by brief ceremonies when certificates will be presented to players on the home club who got their start in Legion ball.

It was emphasized that the Legion and major leagues are sole sponsors of the national Legion playoff tournaments after state champions have been determined. Individual state tournaments are run solely by the Legion with financial help from individual citizens or business firms.

In late years the Ford Motor company has underwritten the equipment and transportation costs of approximately one third of the 12,000 teams. In 1948 the Ford people will hire 33 field representatives to assist in the Legion program.

The Legion ran a "national" tournament in 1926 with only 15 states competing. There was no tourney in 1927 when the national convention was held in Paris. From 1928 on, with major league help, it has been an annual affair.

Robert E. Bentley Post, No. 50 of Cincinnati won the 1947 tournament at Los Angeles.

Clubs Have More Important Business

'McKeever Incident' Gets Ignored

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

CHICAGO —(AP)— The "McKeever incident" involving the University of San Francisco probably will be ignored by club owners of the all-America football conference, who opened their winter meeting today.

Benjamin F. Lindheimer, a principal owner of the Los Angeles Dons and chairman of the league's executive committee, said more important business faced the club owners.

"We are here on business of our own," Lindheimer explained, "and I don't think anything will be done about McKeever."

Lindheimer apparently sounded the death knell of any attempt to reprimand or punish smiling Ed McKeever, new coach of the Chicago Rockets, for his charges involving the 1948 eligibility of 22 University of San Francisco players whom McKeever coached last season.

However, there may be some mild star chamber discussion from the delegation of the San Francisco '49ers, owner Anthony Morabito and coach L. T. "Buck" Shaw, who indicated they would bring the question up with their confreres.

Otto Graham, Cleveland, was named as the league's most valuable player in 1947. He won by a three to two margin over Spec Sanders, New York Yankees.

The club owners renewed their agreement for one year with Admiral Jonas Ingram, U. S. N. (retired), who serves as president and commissioner of the conference, at a reported $30,000 annual salary. Ingram, whose home is at Coronado, Calif., was chosen commissioner a year ago to succeed James L. "Sleepy" Crowley, who resigned to become part owner and coach of the Chicago Rockets. After a disastrous season, during which the Rockets won only one out of of 14 games, Crowley tossed in the sponge to enter private business.

Paul E. Brown, head coach and general manager of the Cleveland Browns, twice champions of the two-year-old league, and James F. Breuil, owner of the Buffalo club, were elected members of the executive committee, of which Lindheimer was reelected chairman.

Brown and Breuil succeed Morabito of San Francisco and Dan Topping of the New York Yankees. Topping, however, was reelected vice-president of the league, while Lewis Carroll of New York City, attorney for the organization, was reelected secretary. O. O. "Scrappy" Kessing, another retired naval officer, who serves as deputy commissioner to Ingram, was chosen treasurer.

THIS IS FOR THE BIRDS

About this time of the winter the male sportsman around the house begins to get restless for more outdoor activity. This restlessness usually winds up with one man getting out the new seed catalog, another man getting out his golf sticks and a third checking his fishing equipment to see if it is in proper condition for summer.

But the fellow that I am thinking about just now is one who gets the bird house fever. Last year, about this time, a local resident with this ailment got the idea of making two identical bird houses resembling a pair of dice.

So he made two perfect cubes about 10 inches square, painting and enameled them glistening white, putting the black spots in place like real galloping dominoes.

In place of spot number one he bored holes for the doorways. These were hung by the corners among the shrubs in the backyard and as an ornament they looked quite novel.

Naturally you would think that somewhere in the neighborhood there would be a pair of birds who would be willing to take a chance on a pair of dice. All through the spring and summer this hopeful landlord waited for some newlyweds to accept his handiwork and raise a family of little ones. Only once did this bird lover nearly succeed.

One day late in the spring a male bluebird came to inspect one of the houses. He sat on top, went in and out of the round doorway several times and finally flew away to tell Mrs. Bluebird of what he had discovered. But the Mrs. must have had other ideas probably thinking of the bad influence that pair of dice would have on her husband and offspring. He should have known.

So with last year's disappointment and with Chief Schwab stopping all gambling in Mansfield this lawabiding citizen has thrown away his pair of dice bird houses and is busy with an altogether new idea on how bird houses should be built.

Here's wishing this Audubon society member better luck in obtaining some tenants this summer.

IT'S GOOD IDEA

Making bird houses is a very good idea to pass away a part of our long tiresome northern winters. Fathers and sons together will get lots of pleasure in the little workshop cutting them out and painting them up with the odds and ends of paint left over from bigger jobs.

Some fellows can really make attractive little houses, too. For the most part they are very inexpensive when made out of short pieces of wood not long enough for other uses.

The ends and center partition of orange crates often are made of good clear grain lumber, and one fellow we know has used these on several occasions and made attractive bird houses. Boys and girls, as well as grown people enjoy watching the birds take these houses or shelters as their own, build nests in them and raise their broods. Many birds raise two crops of youngsters each year.

Birds have long been known to be of great value to fruit trees and gardens by destroying insects and their larvae, thereby earning every little aid and comfort we can give them.

I'll bet you can make just as nice a bird house as your neighbor.

Three Tied For Lead In Commercial Loop

Ohio Sports and Westinghouse will have a chance to take first place in the YMCA Commercial B league this week, as three teams go into the week with identical records.

Along with Ohio Sports and Westinghouse, the Ideal Electric team is knotted for first place, all with a 5-1 record. Ohio Sports plays the Ohio State Reformatory team at 9 p. m. Wednesday, with Westinghouse meeting Mansfield Tire 'B' in the 8 o'clock game.

In the opener, the Salesmen will have the chance to escape from the basement, as they meet Dominion Electric. The Salesmen have not won a game in five starts, while the Electricans have won one of six games.

Westinghouse boasts both the top offense and defense record at present, having scored 259 points while limiting opponents to 142.

SETS THE PACE

The St. Matthew's team, setting the pace in the Senior Church league, will clash with Four Square Gospel in the feature game Tuesday night. The St. Matthew team took over first place last week by defeating Ontario Community in the fight for the top rung.

Ontario Community opposes Lucas Lutheran this week in the first game on the program, with First Christian and First Lutheran meeting in the 7:45 affair. Bellville Lutheran and Park Avenue Baptists play in the 8:30 game with the loop leaders clashing with Four Square in the final game of the night.

Saturday, in the YMCA Junior league, St. Paul's meets Central Methodist, First Lutheran opposes St. John's, Grace Gospel tangles with Park Avenue Baptists, and First Christian plays First Presbyterian.

Bob Meeker is pacing both the Commercial league and Senior Church loop in scoring, having 133 points in the church circuit and 78 in the Commercial.

Giant Telescope May Solve Mystery of Mars 'Canals'

NEW YORK—(AP)—Snapshot photos, each one-sixtieth of a second long, of the mysterious canals of the Planet Mars are among the plans of astronomers for the 200-inch telescope on Palomar mountain in California.

What astronomers expect of this 17-foot wide telescope, the world's greatest eye now taking its first looks at the universe, is told by William T. Skilling, in the Astronomy Journal, Sky and Telescope.

Mars is the nearest object where the big telescope may do better than other telescopes.

The canals of Mars never have been seen clearly except by human eyes. An occasional telescope photo shows fuzzy outlines that might or might not be canals. Some astronomers still deny the existence of these lines.

The obstacle to photography that the 200-inch may overcome is too much air. There is some air on Mars, which cuts down the brightness of lght from the Martian surface. Other telescopes have been forced to take time-exposures.

For these pictures, the Earth's air ruins chances of getting clear canals. The air shimmers, causing Mars to twinkle like a star. The effect is the same as taking a time exposure with a shaking hand.

The big telescope will take the snapshots on a motion picture film. This is because it is believed that one of the many snaps will get Mars face just at the instant when the shimmer pauses. This movement goes from side to side or up and down. During the instant it reverses Mars can be seen much more clearly.

Human eyes see the canals during these instants of stop an go. About 800 canals have been seen and mapped. The lengths are 100 miles to 2,000. The lines are nearly all straight. Lack of curves is hard to account for if the lines were not made by intelligent engineering.

The idea that these canals are planned also is due to the way the canals cross. Many run north and south. Others cross them at angles from 45 to 90 degrees, the latter being parallel with Mars equator.

Nearly always, where a cross line meets a north-and-south line, it keeps right on going on the other side. Natural rivers never do this.

The lines seem also to be segments of great circles. That technical phrase again belongs to intelligent planning. A great circle is usually the course flown by a plane crossing an ocean. It is the line that would be made by a flat plane that cut through the Earth's center point.

Some of these lines run to the white caps that appear at Mars north and south poles during Martian winters.

The caps look and act like snow. They retreat in summer as if they were melting snows.

In springtime, blue-green colors on Mars that may be due to vegetation come down from the poles. On Earth the green advances toward the poles.

This reversal on Mars is laid to the verified fact that Mars is extremely dry. Maybe, say the advocates of canals, the Mars spring greenery cannot grow until the canals bring some of the melted snow southward. The growing follows the water down the canals.

They're Ancient Hangovers

Superstitions Waste Time and Money!

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
(AP Science Reporter)

NEW YORK—(AP)—If you think breaking a mirror means bad luck, you can blame the idea on a pagan ancestor who saw his hair face reflected from a still pool of water.

He thought the reflection was his own spirit staring at him out of the world of spirits. When mirrors were invented, the idea lingered on. Breaking the image meant breaking contact with the spirit world, and that was bad medicine.

Friday the 13th is "unlucky" for two reasons, says John R. Saunders, associate curator of education at the American Museum of Natural History. Thirteen always has been regarded as an unlucky number, just as seven was considered lucky. The crucifixion occurred on Friday, making it an unfortunate day.

Saunders, whose hobby is studying the hundreds of superstitions and nonsensical beliefs that still thrive in this atomic age, says Americtns spend at least $125,000,000 annually on fortune tellers. They have bought at least 10,000,000 rabbits' feet, paying from a dime to five dollars a paw. They spend more millions, he adds on charms, love-potions, powders, dream books, horoscopes and other items.

"But an even greater cost is in wasted time in thinking about or obeying superstitions, and in fuzzy thinking. Superstitions live because people will believe what they want to believe, and won't look for the facts. Progress in solving our modern-day problems will call for clear heads, and for not so much willingness to swallow half-truths or apparent statements of fact without examining them."

GIVES EXPLANATIONS

That's how most superstitions got started, Saunders explains. He cites the likely explanations for some favorites:

Black cats: Since prehistoric times, black has represented the forces of darkness and evil. Cats for centuries were sacred animals. They also were the companions of witches. A black cat crossing your path meant double trouble. But in some parts of the world, they are considered good luck.

Rabbit's foot: The left hind foot of a rabbit is a mighty lucky thing to have—if you're a rabbit. It gives half the kick to scoot away from danger. This may be why humans came to regard it as a good luck charm. It's an old idea, probably similar to the primitive practice of eating the heart of a brave warrior in the belief that his courage was stored there.

Walking under a ladder: There's a good safety reason for not doing so, but the superstition apparently dates back to pagan times when a triangle represented the three symbols that were vital part of many ceremonies or beliefs. A ladder forms a triangle, and breaking the triangle might cause bad luck.

Finding a four-leaf clover: There's a legend that the four-leaf clover was the only thing that Eve took from the Garden of Eden, aside from the purely practical fig leaves. A perhaps sounder reason for thinking it's good luck is the symbolism of the number "four." To primitive people, four was powerful medicine. There were the four winds, the four corners of the earth, et cetera.

Lucky and unlucky days: There are many of these. The Aztecs, who were good astronomers and also interested in astrology, would even postpone a battle if it would start on an "unlucky day." Birthday dates were changed for children born on unlucky days.

FLOWERS BETTER

Love-potions: Sending her flowers would do better, but love-potions still have sales. One is Snow of Jordan, consisting of a drop of milk of magnesia in a vial of water.

Gambling: There are those who swear that getting up and walking around the table will break a streak of bad luck in cards. In certain parts of the United States you can buy "two-pass powder" which "guarantees" winning your point twice in a row in dice. Four-pass powders are available, too, at higher cost naturally.

Some businessmen and even college professors follow a "lucky routine." The first dollar earned gets into a picture frame.

The first attempted sale of the day must be made, or else the day will be bad.

Many farmers still farm by the phases of the moon. (Some city folk believe that hair should be cut on the increase of the moon if you want a thick head of hair.) Many farmers believe milk snakes steal milk from cows. So they kill the snakes, which feed only on mice or other enemies of the farmer's grain. This superstition can cost the farmer real money.

FORGET 'EM

A raft of unfounded beliefs are covered in Bergen Evans' recent book, "The Natural History of Nonsense." Among them he lists these:

That cats will suck a baby's breaths; that rats can foretell when ships will sink; that a hoop snake takes its tail in its mouth and rolls downhill; that bees die when they sting you; that wild animals have reared human children.

That in every drowning a person gets a quick movie of his entire life; that hair turns white overnight from horror; that oysters are poisonous except in "R" months; that if you kill a spider it will rain; that a howling dog foretells death, that ostriches always hide their heads in sand when danger approaches.

The superstitions are like old toys or trinkets of thinking that humans still hang on to, Saunders said. Many people believe in them because life still is an uncertain and insecure thing. He advises that you laugh at your superstitions, try to reason them out, and then forget them.

Illness Fatal To Composer

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Aldo Franchetti, 65, internationally-known composer and conductor of grand opera, died at his home Saturday. He had been ill for three weeks with a heart ailment.

A native of Mantua, Italy, he had conducted most of the world's leading opera companies, including the Metropolitan in New York. Two years ago, he conducted "Pagliacci" in Hollywood Bowl.

Until he was stricken ill, he was active in motion pictures, composing film scores. He is survived by his widow, Ethel.

KING'S FRIEND DIES

CAMBO-LES-BAINS, France—(AP)—Baroness Blanche de Vaughan, 64, companion of King Leopold II of Belgium until his death in 1909, died here Saturday. She came to this village of southwestern France with her two sons after the king's death.

FIRE LOSS $50,000

LORAIN—(AP)—Loss was estimated at $50,000 Saturday in a fire which destroyed the Agnes-Kay dress shop on Broadway, the city's main business street.

Price War Lowers Oleo To 2 Cents

NEWPORT, Ore.—(AP)—A food price war that saw oleomargarine selling at 2 cents a pound was all over by Saturday—but the situation was "unsteady."

One market owner said that at the first sign of a price cut from another market, the war would be on again.

It all started Friday when one market posted some prices under those of a competitor.

Before the day was over, boys were hired to watch windows and when a lower price was posted, a sound truck took to the streets with announcement of a longer one.

Fifty pound sacks of flour went at $1.05—they cost $4.08 wholesale, William Unger, one of the store operators said. Two pounds of lard were 29 cents and two pounds of fancy sliced bacon 43.

It was Oregon's second recent food price war. At St. Helens, north of here on the Columbia river, meat prices have been cut since the first of the year. The highlight there came one day when customers were paid a dime to carry ham home.

SOLD YOUR SADDLE?
WESTERNERS have left the impress of their insight and vigor on practically every phase of American life. It is amazing how many of our current activities are described in terms of the range. Take, for example, the man who abandons his responsibility to himself and his fellowmen.
A cowboy who "sells his saddle" gives up his whole reason for existence. He is brother to the carpenter who sells his kit of tools — or to Esau, who sold his birthright for a mess of pottage.
If you wish "security," work it out for yourself. No real redblooded American wants to "sell his saddle" and be regimented by dictatorial Federal employees. That is exactly what would happen to you, your Doctor, Druggist, Hospitals and all health services — IF you allow COMPULSORY health insurance to become a law of this land, under the guise of "social security."
VOLUNTARY, inexpensive prepaid Medical plans are NOW available to 100,000,000 Americans. Ask your Doctor.

Ties Up Central Europe

Russia Knits Vast Industrial Network

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Moscow's trade deals with middle Europe have gone far enough now to show how the Kremlin is knitting the whole area together into a single industrial network.

Further, the trade pacts show the Kremlin is trying to iron out the disbalance between factory and farming areas. It is putting factories into nations which hitherto lived for the most part off their farms.

The Kremlin appears to disregard national borders within this network, to shunt raw materials to factories and the manufactured goods back to the raw material producers.

Eight satellite nations appear to be involved: Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Albania.

The trade pacts seem to show that the Kremlin thinks of the satellites as filling different roles. Hungary and Romania appear most closely integrated into the Soviet system. There is one sign the Poles have more freedom. The Czechs, who had the most freedom, are being pulled up shorter on the Kremlin leash.

EXPERTS REPORT

All of these facts show up in the voluminous file collected by American trade experts both here and in middle Europe. Much of it comes from the Soviet-controlled press. Here are the major elements:

1. The Soviets appear to be the emergency bread basket. In the past year Poles, Czechs and Finns have received either Russian food or fodder grains when they were up against it.

2. The Soviets also seem to be a source of machinery for nations that need it. Soviets promises of machinery show in several trade pacts. U. S. trade experts wonder whether they can deliver, but there is little chance to check.

Russia has given Poland a $450,000,000 credit to be drawn on through 1956 for purchase of machinery for several industries.

Bulgaria is promised Russian machinery for fertilizer factories and power and coking plants.

The Romanians are promised Soviet steel products, railroad engines and machine tools.

The Yugoslavs are promised Russian equipment to process oil, chemicals, metal and lumber. Here the Russians have promised to build up whole industries with aid from Russian engineers.

Insurance Group Plans Sales Meet

The Mansfield-Ashland Life Underwriters association will sponsor a sales congress at the Richland Recreation center March 19. Speakers will include Lloyd H. Feder, president of the state organization, and W. Lee Shields, state superintendent of insurance.

Harold V. Tom, manager of the Zanesville Credit bureau, spoke at the monthly meeting of the association Wednesday at a meeting at the Recreation center.

Speaking on "How Do You Rate," he classified individuals in any organization as (1) the indifferent group; (2) the chronic oppositionists, and (3) the positive group.

FILM BROADWAY COMEDY—Broadway's famed comedy, "Voice of the Turtle" which opened last night with a midnight movie at the Ohio theater, has two of Hollywood's best known younger players in the lead roles. They are Ronald Reagan and Eleanor Parker. The two with Eve Arden as comedienne, provide the love plot for one of the best shows of the past decade.

Grain Prices Steady After Plunging For Eleven Days

NEW YORK—(AP)—The downward plunge of prices on the nation's grain markets which began 11 days ago was halted for the first time Saturday.

Wheat and oats closed on the Chicago Board of Trade several cents a bushel higher than yesterday. Corn, which had plummeted fastest, held about even. Only soybeans again fell the daily limit of eight cents.

There had been rallies during the nine days of trading which began Feb. 4, but each day until today the closing prices had been below those of the previous day.

It was nip and tuck during the closing hour at Chicago, as trading became rapid and corn began to drop from the day's highs. Wheat was caught in the downdraft and hit new lows for the day only to rally in the closing minutes.

Cotton and lard kept in step with the grain prices. Stocks showed rising tendencies at the close although the New York market was quiet and changes amounted to less than $1 a share.

May wheat at Chicago stood at $2.34½ cents a bushel at the close, two cents above Friday. May oats closed at $1.02½ cents, about one cent higher.

Corn was unable to survive the last minute slump and wound up from three-quarters of a cent lower to one cent higher.

Saturday's trading brought to the fore again the question of how far grain prices would plunge. Their steadiness Saturday was expected to bolster other commodity markets, which had sagged in sympathy.

There was a possibility that the upward trend Saturday may prove to have been only temporary.

Fire Damages Car

A truck from the Central fire station was called at 6:15 p. m. yesterday to 170 West Third street to extinguish a fire in the car of Emil Cornell, France street. The fire started when alcohol leaked from the cooling system and spattered on the hot engine, firemen said. Slight damage was reported.

Russians Absorb Blow On 'Schnozzle'

Reds Lose Round In Propaganda Battle

By RELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Russians have lost a big round, but they are still ahead on points, in the battle of propaganda.

It is about 18 months old now, and completely one-sided until recently. The Russians, hitting above and below the belt, have been battering America around the ring since 1946 without any real retaliation whatever.

Three weeks ago, they ran into a bloody nose.

It came in the form of a book, published by the state department under the unassuming title, "Nazi-Soviet Relations, 1939-41." It was a collection of official papers from the German foreign office, found at the end of the war.

It traced the story, step by step and date by date, of the deal between Hitler and the Russians which crystalized into the treaty of non-aggression and the agreement on how to divide Europe and the rest of the world.

The Russians apparently were surprised, although why they should have been is a mystery. The contents of the German documents were not entirely unknown, and it certainly was known that we had them in our possession.

Nevertheless, it has taken the Soviet propaganda chorus until now to find an answer. This in itself is unprecedented. Heretofore, on any given issue, the Russian argument has been the first to assault the radios of the world.

ANSWER NOT TOO GOOD

The answer is not a very good one, but it slips smoothly into the whole pattern of Russian propaganda against the United States.

It was American money, according to Moscow, that financed and rebuilt the German war machine. The Austrian anschluss and Munich, therefore, were only results. So, too, by inference was the non-aggression treaty that Stalin signed with Hitler.

American money — or "Wall street," as the Soviets always say—is again today the great menace to the liberty of the world, if you believe Radio Moscow.

Here is the Russian formula, endlessly repeated, and never changing:

1. The United States aims at mastery of the world.

2. This will take the form of economic enslavement, the capture of all foreign markets and all the world's wealth.

3. "Wall street" tycoons are the master strategists in this campaign.

4. The Marshall plan is their immediate instrument, to be followed by others after it has "enslaved" the first 16 nations.

5. The British and French governments, and in fact any governments within the scope of the Marshall plan, are "lackeys", taking orders from "Wall street," and obediently carrying them out.

This is the main line of Russian propaganda against America. There is also a subsidiary line.

ATTACKS FLAWS

It attacks all those imperfections of the American nation, in order to show that "the real rulers of America" are "fascists," "enemies of the people," etc.

Thus, the Ku Klux Klan, the fight over civil liberties, the recent report on grain speculation by members of the government, etc., have been given very much more prominence on the Soviet radio and in the Red press than they received anywhere else, except in the United States.

What are the results, on both sides, of the propaganda battle?

Undoubtedly, the widespread strikes in Italy and France, and the belief in authoritative quarters that more are coming, were testimonials to the effectiveness of Soviet propaganda.

The trend, in some quarters, of European labor away from communist organizations, may possibly be a sign of American success.

The state department claims to have received 150,000 letters from 40 different countries, in response to its efforts.

The publication of the German documents may have even greater results.

Sag Resisted By Stocks

NEW YORK—(AP)—The stock market continued to display selectively steadier tendencies Saturday, after Tuesday's sharpest break since last April, but dealings were the slowest, in more than three months and the averages showed a substantial loss on the week.

An early rally in recently slumping commodities, which did not follow through for grains, buoyed sentiment for securities to some extent in the final session.

Saturday's transfers were 280,000 shares.

Modest improvement in the two-hour stretch was retained by Rock Island, Union Pacific, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, American Telephone, Goodyear, Western Union, American Woolen, Gulf Oil, Schenley and Loew's.

Backward were Sante Fe, Great Northern Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio, Woolworth, International Harvester, Montgomery Ward, Phelps Dodge, Du Pont, Owens-Illinois, Pepsi-Cola, American Tobacco "B," Standard Oil (NJ), and Paramount Pictures.

243 ITU Locals Favor Woodruff

INDIANAPOLIS —(AP)— International Typographical union headquarters here announced Saturday that 243 ITU locals have endorsed Woodruff Randolph for re-election as president.

Don Hurd, secretary-treasurer, said 32 locals have so far endorsed John Evans of Washington, candidate of the rival independent party. Endorsements of 50 of the 850 locals is required for nomination. Other current endorsement figures: Hurd (progressive party), 252; Leland Shores, St. Louis (Independent), 43.

Rototiller in Operation

The new Rototiller farm machine, produced by Graham-Paige Motors in the giant Willow Run plant, prepares soil for planting in a single operation, making unnecessary the three operations of plow, disk and harrow. The five-horsepower tillage unit, which churns and crumbles the soil to a depth of nine inches, has attachments which adapt it to a score of other farm tasks such as bulldozing, seeding, mowing, snowplowing and other operations.
